With the release of the Apple Workgroup Server 95® there has been confusion with respect to guiding customers towards selecting the proper platform for their specific needs. In a number of instances the database version of this product has been selected when what the customer required was really the File/Print Server.

ACIUS Inc. is shipping their version of the 4th Dimension™ server. It will be important to make sure that people who want to obtain this product combination understand that the proper platform is the File/Print Server and not the database server product.
