

Authors:

Jeffrey Adams

attended Rose-Hulman Institute of Technology where he received a BS in Physics in 1991. He began this project in the first year of the Integrated Freshman Curriculum at Rose-Hulman during the summer of 1990. He was the sole programmer of PhysicsWorld until summer's end in 1991 (up to and including version 4.1). Jeffrey Adams is now attending the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign where he is working towards his PhD in Physics.

Bin Wu

is presently attending Rose-Hulman Institute of Technology. He is working on a double degree, in the areas of undergraduate Electrical Engineering and Mathematics. He is a member of the Class of 1993.

email at wub@nextwork.rose-hulman.edu

Jeffrey Patterson

is presently attending Rose-Hulman Institute of Technology. He is working on a double degree, in the areas of undergraduate Physics and Mathematics. He is a member of the Class of 1995.

email at patterjd@nextwork.rose-hulman.edu

Bin Wu and Jeffrey Patterson

World to conform more to the NeXTstep and Object Oriented programming style. Some of the features that they added were the ability to drag and click particles, add boundaries and connections with the mouse, the Edit commands for the particles, and the ability to pre-define particle types.