Welcome to the TickSoft documentation for LoTo98 - the lottery predictor and checker program, please select an option above.

1.2 LoTo98 - The Lottery Predictor And Checker Program (Introduction)

®	88888888888888888888888	Introduction

Welcome to LoTo98, a new lottery predictor and checker $\ensuremath{\hookleftarrow}$ program, with features that include, a compact and well designed GUI and the ability to generate numbers using different methods.

It can then be used to check these randomly generated numbers against those which have recently been drawn.

In this version it has been improved in the following ways:

- ·~The GUI/window is now 5% smaller and hopefully looks better
- · Another random number generator has been created
- · A minor GUI based error caused by ACE basic has been fixed
- \cdot Executable will be smaller and faster
- · Incompatibilities in high range Amiga are now sorted

	This product is winware, this means that it remains under \leftarrow the owners co	pyright* but can be distributed for free. As long as the suppo	rt files are distributed along with it.

Although not required, a simple email stating any CD or disk distribution would be prefered (ticksoft@workmail.com).

Winware also means (in the case of this title) that if you get more than one thousand pounds in the lottery (as a result of this title) that you consider sending me

a small percentage

of your winning, say ten pounds (this only applies once).

LOT098 was designed to be as easy to use as it could be within the GUI. To start the program you need to double click on the icon or type its name into the CLI.

Once you've done this you will be presented with a menu.

The program is split into four main parts, these include:

- The number generator this section is used to generate random numbers using various methods. (currently now 3) once six numbers have been generated you can optionally add them to a board on the next section or print them;
- The database of boards this is where you enter the numbers which need to be checked on the next draw (currently twenty five boards). If you don't want to use a board then press clear then accept;
- The draw entry section from here you enter the numbers that have just been drawn. They are then used to compare with the boards in the previous section and the result is sent to the next section;
- The results section this section shows how many numbers match that of which have been drawn, to print a result just click on the button.

Over the next couple of months LoTo98 will be improved in the following ways:

- · The executable will become even smaller and faster;
- · There will be more number generation methods;
- \cdot I may update the CLI version and include it;
- · Added compatibility with lotteries in other countries.
- · Any other suggestions?

All of the above can only be improved if you write to $\begin{tabular}{ll} me & & \\ & & with \\ & & your ideas. \end{tabular}$

This title requires an Amiga, which has a hard disk (in $\,\,\hookleftarrow\,\,$ order to save) and a printer (in order to print). The hard disk must have an sys:s assign (although this is the norm anyway). Kickstart 2.xx may also be required.
