1.1 First Contact

First Contact
a TaskForce scenario by Jens Granseuer

Difficulty: Hard

The Plot

Believe it or not, it seems like the script authors of countless horrible B-movies were right, after all. Yesterday evening we received reports of a U.F.O. going down about fifty miles northeast of our base. At first we didn't pay any attention to the calls of several frightened citizens, but when there were finally more than a hundred in less than an hour and some even reported that the aliens had begun to slaughter the civilians we had to go out and take a look at it.

The recon squad survived just about eight minutes after they had arrived at the scene, but the recordings we got from their cameras actually suggest that we're dealing with extraterrestrial lifeforms here. And they don't seem to be particularly friendly.

Our task is to restore law and order around the landing site. We have been authorized to use every means at our disposal to get rid of the invaders. If possible recover some alien technology or corpses, but don't hesitate to blow up the ship if you've got no alternatives - but try to get any hostages out first. I'll rely entirely on your professional assessment, gentlemen. Be careful. We still don't know exactly who - or what - we are dealing with. Don't disappoint me. Dismissed.

Clear the area of operations of all unfriendly aliens.
