hat's New?

A lot of things have changed since InternetMemory 1.0! Thanks to all those who wrote in with your comments! There's a list of all those who contributed at the end of this chapter- if we've left you off the list, please let us know and we'll fix the problem!

We've marked off (in this manual) all the items with this symbol:

New in InternetMemory 1.5!

Here's a list of the more visible changes:
• Thank You dialog after registration.
• Drag and Drop supported into Netscape's Content List.
• Dragging text (address) into content list from elsewhere.
• Copy item as text out of Content List.
• Paste text (address) into Content List.
• New buttons!
• Record Netscape™ feature which sorts hierarchically.
• Send addresses to all applications which support the GetURL AppleEvent.   This includes Anarchie, Netscape, Newswatcher, etc.
• FAT Binary!

Here's   the less visible changes:
• New search algorythm allows items to be drawn (updated) more quickly.
• New drag code is 80% leaner, much more efficent, and very stable.
• Fixed Reverting Preferences bug.
• Fixed the Trash emptying bug.

Enjoy!

Updates are explained in detail in Chapter 2.

What's Coming?

The one major function that users requested that isn't in InternetMemory 1.5 is the ability to Import Netscape Bookmark files. But it's coming! On March 8th, 1996, we will release a Drag and Drop file converter to turn Bookmark files into InternetMemory Documents. Stay tuned to our "What's New?" page for more information. The URL is:
