Company Profile

AA-Software International

Based in the South of France adjacent to the Sophia Antipolis Science Park near Nice, AA-Software International is developing Visual Basic tools in C++ and providing services on an international basis. AA-Software reaches most of its customers through the Internet and other expressways on the Information Highway.

Services available are:

Internationalization of your software in general. We are especially skilled in taking products that were not originally designed to be marketed on a international basis. This is ideal for deploying corporate developed software in various countries.

Localization services. Translation for all European languages. We will also quote other languages.

Design and implementation of electronic mail networks and consulting on how to use the Information Highway to expand your International market.
