

Legal Disclaimer

All information provided within the CSP AOL Hack Pac archive is provided for the sole purpose of entertainment. In pursuant to the Federal Freedom of Information Act, the information contained within the documents enclosed within CSP AOL Hack Pac archive is published solely for informational and entertainment purposes. The publishers and authors in no way wish to encourage or promote unlawful and/or criminal activities of any nature or sort, but merely wish to furnish the materials contained herein in accordance with the practices and policies established by the IIRG. Local, State and Federal laws provide severe civil and criminal penalties for unlawful and/or criminal activity which may include fines and/or imprisonment. The publisher and authors absolve themselves from all actions, direct or indirect, consequential or inconsequential, resulting from the readers of this publication.

In regard to the Trade Secrets Act (18 USCS § 1905) the information published within these documents is in compliance with the scope of the FOIA, exemption three and four. All information within these documents is also in compliance with the Privacy Act (5 USCS § 552a) since the information was already publicly accessible. In regard to exemption four of the FOIA, the information included in this document was already widely known. Also, the "Competitive Harm" prong of the FOIA is irrelevant since the information was disclosed informally and is widely known.