Finally, #macforce has officially opened on EFNet.   What's "officially" opened mean?   It's now a legit channel that provides DCC bots, talk, its official hotline server, and whatever else on the Macintosh scene.

At the moment, #emc is NOT a warez channel, so don't bother asking.   However, #emc is there for Mac related chat and EMC related chat.   Most EMC authors hang out in the channel quite often, so feel free to stop by with any questions regarding features or artticles in the past issues. Suggestings for the 'zine are always welcome, post 'em in the channel and hopefully someone will be there to respond.

This channel is pretty much self explanitory.   Not only does it have the latest in Hotline sites, but you'll find DCC bots and warez being offered here as well.

Our new server!   3 T1's on this server, so the speed should be very nice!   Here you will find all recent and future issues of EMC, as this will be the final home for the 'zine.   We will also split up pages for special feature articles, like the FloodFAQs for example.   You will also find a page for the software that we have features on (NON-warez, but for scripts like Plugs' [A]narchy).

Check here for the latest SN# programs, Ircle scripts, bot links, and other EMC related information!
