

I run a pretty high volume website. My story is a little different. (But with the same ending.) Cyberthrill casino switched to a weekly payout supposedly. Well at the end of the both the first and second week of my advertising I was told that payments were being delayed due to their security department investigating all accounts. And at the end of the third week (on the day the checks were supposed to be sent out) I tried to log in and instead of my stats I got a message saying I used illegal means and I would not be payed. All I ever used was their banner. I never sent any kind of spam, newsgroup postings, or anything except that banner.

They owe me over $1200 !!!! I have emailed them over 5 times and have not received a response! They believe that they won't be touched because they operate outside the US.

Post my email address and encourage everyone who has posted on your site to email me their story and the amounts. If I can get enough information on the people I plan on filing a lawsuit. (It's more of a principle thing than a money thing. ) If anyone can find out the names of the individuals and address of the company, please mail me the information.

dwpow@empr.com

Ok here is the deal, we run 9 adult websites on the net. These guys looked good to us. 20 cents a hit kewl with me besides everyone likes to gamble a bit...well to make a long story short our company got screwed out of 9 grand.

We are now proceeding with legal action. If you want to join us in our lawsuit

PLEASE E-mail me at drkraven@hardcore-cafe.com we will first send cyberthrill a list of webmasters who intend to proceed with legal actions and if we get no response we are then going to begin legal action bottom line

THEY ARE NOT GOING TO GET AWAY WITH THIS.