

Open Transport is Apple's new standards-based networking and communications software, including the AppleTalk and TCP/IP control panels and software components. It provides a foundation for flexible, high performance network communications including connectivity to LocalTalk, ethernet, AppleTalk and TCP/IP networks, and services including printing, file sharing, and electronic mail. On Power Macintosh systems, Open Transport provides PowerPC native networking.