

Balanced forces

When an object is stationary or moving at a constant speed in a straight line, the forces on it are balanced.

When just two forces act upon the object, they will only balance if they are equal and opposite.

Three or more forces can also balance, provided that they act in such different directions that their net effect is zero.