

The September 1936 issue of MYSTERY ADVENTURE MAGAZINE featured "Coils of Death," the final story in the Wo Fan series. Fans of good fiction everywhere could breathe a sigh of relief that their ordeal was over. On the other hand, it did provide Saunders with an opportunity to paint another nice cover, with gravity-defying strips of cloth across our heroine's chest. The issue also featured "Satan's Masquerade" by E. Hoffmann Price. Although Price, who wrote for nearly every pulp field, was prolific in both the adventure and spicy genres, this is his sole contribution to MYSTERY ADVENTURE MAGAZINE.
