

The November 1940 issue of MYSTERY NOVELS AND SHORT STORIES may have set some kind of record for the most number of people squeezed into a pulp cover. No less than five individuals, all managing to look either suitable menacing or menaced, are crammed into a 7" by 9" space. Maybe they should have all moved to "Satan's Serpent Valley" where there was probably more room.