

A great story title, "Morgue Keeper, Pull Out My Slab!" jumps out of the cover for the June 1950 issue of PRIVATE DETECTIVE. The cover for this issue was by Allen Anderson, who was a prolific contributor to the Fiction House group of pulps and comics, doing covers for such pulps as PLANET STORIES, ACTION STORIES and FRONTIER STORIES. Although none of these Fiction House pulps were spicy pulps, many of the covers, particularly those by Anderson, did feature women in various stages of undress or with form fitting outfits (including the always chic metal brassiere favored by space traveling babes everywhere).