OREGON

Oct. 30, 1999

Joey Harrington replaces starter A.J. Feeley to open the second half, and throws a 29-yard touchdown pass to Marshaun Tucker with nine seconds remaining in the game, to cap a dramatic come-from-behind win over the Sun Devils, 20-17. The Ducks easily marched down the field after Arizona State took the lead with 1:04 to play, with Harrington completing 3 of 4 passes for 60-yards on the drive.

Top-10 Stadium

In a poll of some of the top collegiate stadiums in the country, Autzen Stadium has consistently been tabbed among the nation's top-10 venues to watch a college football game.

The rankings took into account such factors as the game-day atmosphere, uniqueness of the facility, the area's surroundings as well as fan support.

Oct. 22, 1994

"The Pick" - "Huard drops back to throw the ball, sets up, looks, throws toward the corner of the end zone. It's intercepted, INTER-CEPTED! The Ducks have the ball! Kenny Wheaton's gonna score, Kenny Wheaton's GONNA SCORE! The 20, the 10, TOUCH-DOWN! KENNY WHEATON, on the interception, the most improbable finish to the football game!" ~Jerry Allen

Quotable

"Autzen's 59,000 strong make the Big House [Michigan] collectively sound like a pathetic whimper. It's louder than 'The Swamp' at Florida, 'The Shoe' in Columbus and 'Death Valley' at Louisiana State. Autzen Stadium is where great teams go to die."

Michigan Daily, September 2003

Reinvesting in Success

Oregon's commitment is no better illustrated than in its football facilities, with the department completing the $13 million Casanova Center in 1991, the $15 million Moshofsky Center indoor practice facility in 1998 and the $90 million Autzen Stadium expansion in 2002. Stadium improvements include the addition of more than 12,000 seats (capacity 54,000), 32 skyboxes, a state-of-the-art press box and a three-story luxury suite.

Sept. 18, 1999

The Ducks score 72 points against the Nevada Wolf Pack, the most points scored in Autzen Stadium history, led by Reuben Droughns' three touchdown runs and a 99-yard kickoff return for a touchdown by Jason Cooper, the second longest return in Oregon history. The Ducks scored 58 unanswered points after the Wolf Pack cut their deficit to 14-10 with just over five minutes remaining in the first quarter.

Sept. 29, 1990

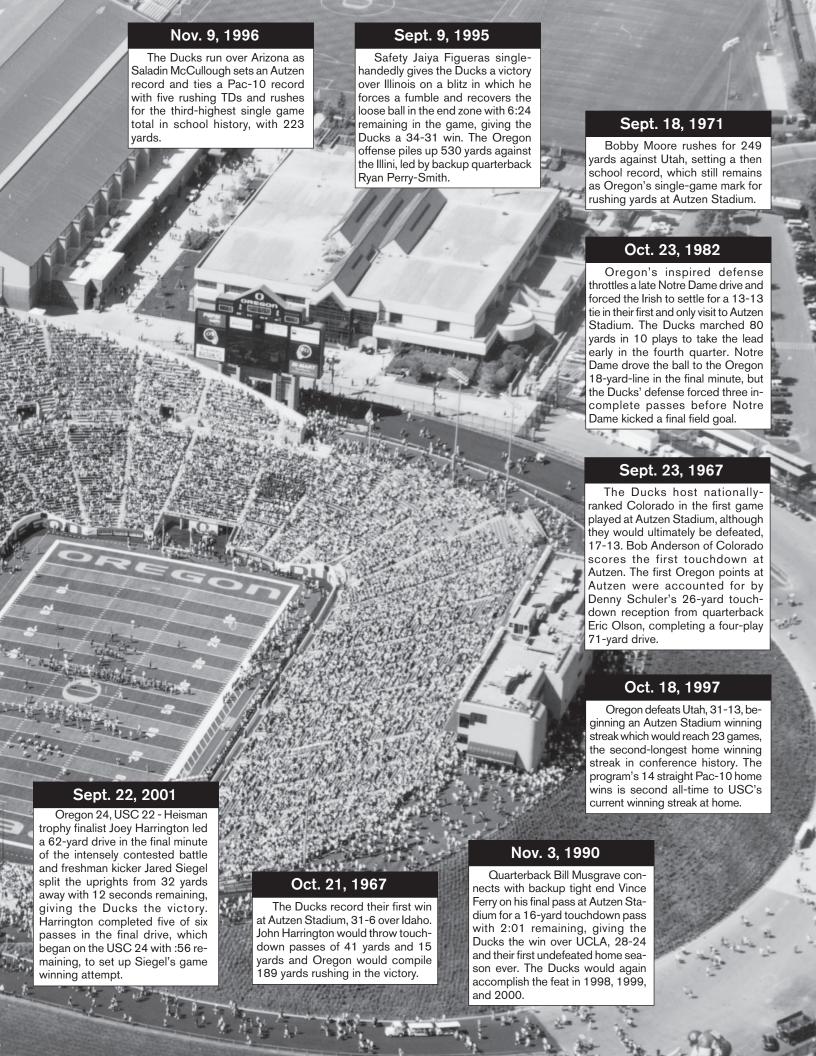

Oregon intercepts a career-high five passes by Brigham Young quarterback Ty Detmer and sacks the eventual Heisman Trophy winner six times en route to a 32-16 victory over the fourth-ranked Cougars. Daryle Smith registers three of the interceptions for the Ducks, garnering national player of the week recognition from Sports Illustrated.

Sept. 13, 1986

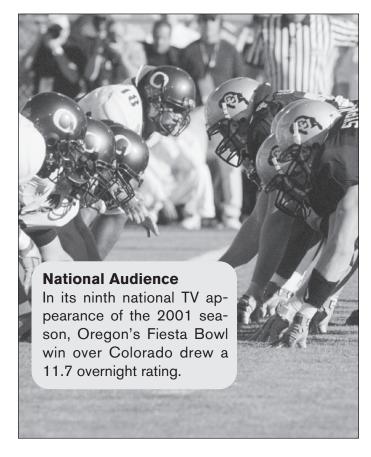

Backup defensive back Tim Cooper recovers an onside kick with 44 seconds remaining and senior Matt McLeod kicks the winning 35-yard field goal as time expires to give the Ducks a thrilling 32-30 victory over Colorado. Quarterback Chris Miller also completes a school-record-tying 28 passes in the game.

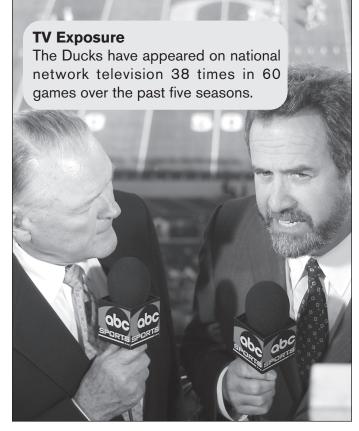

Sept. 20, 2003

Michigan enters Autzen Stadium ranked No. 3 in the nation with one of the top running backs in the nation in Chris Perry. The Oregon defense stifles the lauded Wolverine running attack, holding Perry to just 26 yards and Michigan to minus-3 yards rushing. Keith Lewis' block of a Michigan punt with 6:55 remaining, is recovered by Jordan Carey in the end-zone, cementing the Oregon victory, 31-27.

Today's students, like the nearly 200,000 alumni before them, have access to the most current knowledge in classes, as well as laboratories and seminars conducted by leading researchers.

Ranked 15th in the country among public universities and sixth among "rising" public universities, the university is regarded as one of the "best buys" in higher education for its high quality and affordability. The Association of American Universities (AAU) is an organization of research universities devoted to maintaining a strong system of academic research and education. It consists of 60 U.S. and two Canadian universities.

The primary purpose of the AAU is to provide a forum for the development and implementation of institutional and national policies promoting strong programs in academic research and scholarship and undergraduate, graduate, and professional education.

sors' salaries. Railroad magnate Henry Villard contributed funds to complete it. The second building on campus was constructed with public funds and named in Villard's honor. Designated National Historic Landmarks by the federal government, both still grace the campus. Today, the university's physical plant consists of 336 structures on and off campus and is valued at more than $312 million.

The 295-acre Eugene campus is the state's center of liberal arts and sciences education, as well as one of the nation's best teaching and research institutions. Professional schools in architecture, business, education, journalism and communication, law and music complete the broad range of course offerings, with degrees awarded in more than 121 majors.

University science departments are winning national attention in biomechanics, computers, genetics, lasers, neuroscience and nanotech-nology.

The Lundquist College of Business has developed a major new emphasis in entrepreneurship and sports marketing, and the College of Education, one of the best such programs in the nation, is home to a nationally recognized Institute on Violence and Destructive Behavior.

Among the Graduate School's many institutes and research centers are the internationally recognized Institute of Molecular Biology, the Oregon Institute of Marine Biology on the southern Oregon coast and the International Institute for Sport and Human Performance.

Even as UO's academic and research programs grow, so does the university's representation of and commitment to diversity. Students of color constitute about 13 percent of the student body, and the university promotes increased diversity through such programs as the Office of Multicultural Affairs, which provides academic and support services to minority students; the Associated Students of the University of Oregon Multicultural Center; and various initiatives, such as establishment of the Ethnic Studies Program. About 1,400 international students from nearly 80 countries represent about 7 percent of the student body.

mer program that allows incoming students to register early for fall classes in a structured setting with advisers to help with the process. IntroDUCKtion even has a special full-day program for parents. It is designed to give the student an opportunity to obtain academic counseling at a time when advisers have more time for personal conferences. In addition, students can address their specific needs during that visit and also can become acquainted with the many services and features of the campus. The Office of Student Affairs also operates New Student Orientation, on-campus internships, parents' programs and honors and awards.

ACADEMIC SERVICES

The athletics department addresses the primary objective of its student-athletes with the work of its academic support staff. The academic support team acts as a bridge between the student-athlete and campus resources, ensuring they are aware of and use the resources the University has to offer.

ACADEMICS AND FOOTBALL

The aim of every coach is to successfully combine academics and athletics. The term of "student-athlete" is not just a catchy phrase.

Oregon football has done one of the best jobs in the Pacific-10 Conference of mixing those two vital ingredients. Athletes that do well in the classroom and on the field are a tremendous source of pride within the Ducks' athletic community.

Over the last 15 years, Oregon has been one of the league's leaders in producing players for the conference all-academic teams and also winning games as well. Here's a chart to illustrate the facts:

The function of the support team is to:

- Advise and assist student-athletes with academic, preprofessional and career problems
- · Organize and monitor a structured study hall. All firstyear students are required to attend study sessions four nights each week
- Trace academic progress using information on attendance and performance submitted in mid-term grade reports by faculty
- Provide individual and group tutoring and other study sessions among students with similar needs, assuring questions are answered properly
 - Assist with resumes and sharpening job interview skills
- · Encourage students to approach its members with problems and questions.

In addition to the academic support staff, the UO provides a variety of other resources that give students the personal attention needed, both inside and outside the classroom. Below are several programs that faculty and staff have developed to help new students succeed.

EARLY ORIENTATION/REGISTRATION PROGRAM

The Office of Student Development coordinates the sum-

FRESHMAN SEMINARS

Freshman Seminars courses offer new students an opportunity to learn in a personalized setting, to be challenged intellectually, to express their ideas freely, and to become better acquainted with faculty members and classmates. Only freshmen and first-term undergraduate transfer students can enroll in these seminars. Classes are limited to 20 students.

FRESHMAN INTEREST GROUPS

Freshman Interest Groups are designed to allow incoming students complete university education requirements while focusing on an area of interest or possible major.

Students in each group share enrollment in three related courses. One of these classes will have a small enrollment to give a better opportunity to meet other students in the group. An experienced student serves as group leader and coordinates ongoing activities, such as study sessions and social events.

OFFICE OF ACADEMIC ADVISING/STUDENT SERVICES

The athletics department works closely with the academic advising office to face the challenges of college. Tasks such as choosing a major, planning course schedules and solving personal and academic problems are among those in which students can obtain assistance.

Students also can seek details on the National Student Exchange Program, which offers study opportunities at 174 institutions throughout the United States.

ACADEMIC LEARNING SERVICES

The Center for Academic Learning Services has something to offer all students interested in improving their skills. Individual assistance is available in developing effective strategies for time and task management, textbook reading and note taking. The center also offers small classes in speed reading and preparing for graduate school admission tests such as the Graduate Record Examinations (GRE), Law School Admission Test (LSAT) and Graduate Management Admission Test (GMAT).

OFFICE OF MULTICULTURAL AFFAIRS

Academic and other support services provided by the Office of Multicultural Affairs include orientation, cultural activities and other types of activities annually for current and prospective students and faculty. Among its other special services are a mentor program that pairs students with faculty members, special composition and mathematics courses and tutors in a number of areas.

Newly renovated Student Recreation Center

on the athletic field is often assisted by living quar-

on campus. The University Inn is the finest dormitory at the university. Each large room has its own shower, desk and telephone and weekly room service is provided. Each floor also has a convenient laundry room.

There are study carrels on every floor and mandatory quiet hours are enforced. The sixth floor is designated as academic pursuit area with strict quiet hours at all times. Special lectures and seminars often are sponsored.

Three well-balanced meals are served daily and the kitchen staff is happy to save a hot meal or pack a lunch if given advance notice. A snack bar offers beverages and small food items each evening. A recreation room contains ping pong and billiard tables, video games and a stationary bike. A television with cable service is located in the lobby of each floor. Activities such as talent shows, bands and weekend outings afford residents the opportunity to meet other students.

An intra-dorm government, comprised of students and staff members, is organized into several committees that oversee dormitory life. All students are encouraged to participate in formulating policy and organizing activities.

ERB MEMORIAL UNION

Located at the heart of the campus, the Erb Memorial Union provides a multitude of services for students. There are four different eateries with menus ranging from deli sandwiches and hamburgers to lasagna.

Numerous activities are coordinated through EMU offices, including all intramural and club sports including baseball and crew. Billiards, bowling, a video arcade, computer lounge, barber shop, an ice cream parlor and copy services are located on the lower level.

Services at the main desk include check cashing, bus and airline tickets, concert tickets and payment of telephone and electric bills as well as film developing and automated bank services. The EMU is another example of the commitment the university makes to its students.

STUDENT HEALTH CENTER

Basic medical and nursing care, treatment for sports-related injuries and limited physical therapy are available to all registered students at the Student Health Center.

Visits to the center's physicians are free of charge and laboratory and X-ray services are provided for a reasonable fee. The center also has a registered pharmacy and offers immunization clinics. The staff is composed of doctors, psychiatrists, nurses, nurse practitioners, lab technicians and other support personnel.

ESPN PARTNERSHIP

The University of Oregon is one of six schools in the country to form an innovative marketing agreement with ESPN Regional Television designed to increase exposure for the entire Ducks athletics department.

In the fourth year of a five-year agreement, the subsidiary of Capital Cities/ABC, Inc., and the Walt Disney World Co. will focus on the growth of the athletics department's nation-wide corporate sponsorship program, promotions and programming syndication.

The Game-Day Experience in the Len Casanova Athletic Center.

The University of Oregon took another step towards generating facilities unsurpassed in the Pacific-10 Conference, if not the nation, with the formal dedication of the Ed Moshofsky Sports Center in August 1998.

The first indoor practice facility on the West Coast became a reality, thanks in large part to Ed and Elaine Moshofsky, with the groundbreaking taking place in March 1997.

Ed was a 1943 Oregon business graduate and three-year starter as an offensive and defensive lineman, before breaking into the lumber business. He started Moshofsky Enterprises in 1951 and became CEO of Fort Hill Lumber Company before retiring in 1990. His wife was a 1947 Oregon State graduate and former school teacher.

Formulating ideas for the ideal facility by visiting several similar models throughout the country, the 117,000 squarefoot spectacle was constructed for about $15 million, which also included two grass practice fields and one soccer competition field west of the Moshofsky and Casanova Centers.

The football practice fields have been named after Oregon graduate Pat Kilkenny, while the soccer field is named in honor of Randy and Susie Papé.

Spanning a height of 70 feet at its tallest point, the sparkling indoor facility includes a fulllength artificial football surface, a synthetic fourlane 120-meter running track and the Duck Shop souvenir retail outlet. Not only is it the ideal solution for the University's football team to work out during inclement weather, but plays host to eight of the 16 intercollegiate sports.

Just Do It!

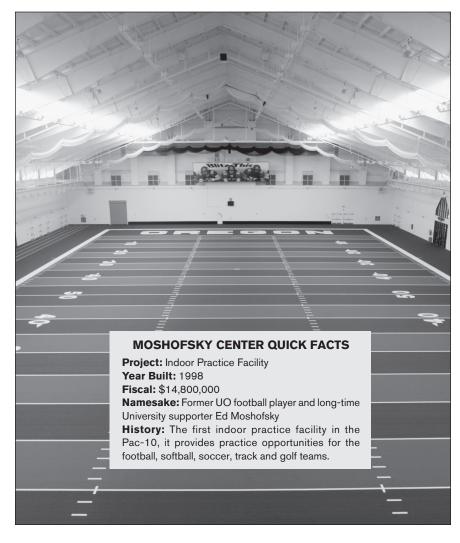

The University of Oregon is one of just a few schools that have an exclusive partnership with Nike to provide all intercollegiate athletic teams with practice clothing, shoes, warm-ups and game uniforms. Also, as part of Nike's marketing efforts, fans across the country can find authentic Oregon game and practice clothing in retail outlets nationwide.

An automated system of nets can be lowered within minutes to convert the structure into a batting cage for the women's softball team or provide a driving range for the men's and women's golf teams.

But the school's student-athletes aren't the only ones to benefit from this unique facility. On days in which the Ducks' football team is playing next door in Autzen Stadium, the Moshofsky Sports Center is converted into one of the largest indoor tailgate gatherings in the country. The building can hold up to 5,000 football fans before and after each home game.

Two years after its dedication, an expansion of the modern facility was completed to include an athlete lounge, additional meeting and storage facilities, an auxiliary medical treatment center, as well as upgraded catering services.

CASANOVA CENTER

Named after Oregon's longtime football coach and athletic director, Len Casanova, the Casanova Center provides the football program with its largest improvement prior to the completion of the Moshofsky Sports Center.

Oregon also has improved its entire general operations with the housing of its entire staff on the second level of the facility since its opening during the summer of 1991.

Serving as the cornerstone of the 102,000 square foot facility is the expanded locker room for football and weight room accommodations for all sports. The cost of the two-story structure, which was formally dedicated on Sept. 27, 1991, exceeded $12 million and the entire Autzen improvement project hit nearly $18 million at its conclusion.

The completed locker room is almost four times the size of the previous facility. The project's lower level also includes a modern medical treatment area, practice accommodations for wrestling and equipment facilities for football and wrestling.

The upper floor contains offices for all of the department's coaches and administrators, conference rooms, audio/visual studios as well as exhibit and exposition centers for UO.

The Pittman Room is furnished with kitchen facilities and is utilized during the season for training table where the football player can enjoy the evening meal before departing the football complex.

The construction of sky boxes and the master skysuite atop the north rim of Autzen Stadium was a part of the beginning of the Autzen improvements. The three-tiered building was accompanied by a new press box constructed under the roof on the south side of the facility.

Ten corporate boxes, seating as many as 21 persons each, are leased for $30,000 per year for three years, plus a two-year option. Individual seating in the 350-seat master skysuite is available at $1,250 each.

The revenue from the sky boxes and master skysuite, projected to surpass $800,000 per year, was utilized to finance the construction of the Casanova Center along with sale of covered sponsor seats and gift-in-kind and cash contributions.

The third-largest city in Oregon, Eugene enjoys the cultural advantages of a major city, yet the relaxed and unique atmosphere of a quaint college town. The campus is located a short distance from the city center and is easily accessible by foot, pedal power or public transportation. Appropriately, bike paths and jogging trails criss-cross the city, catering to students' preferred mode of getting around the city of about 150,000 people. With the Springfield community just east of Eugene, the metro population tops 200,000.

Community support for University of Oregon athletics, by far the most popular game in town, is unparalleled. The Ducks have set numerous attendance records in recent years and are averaging a remarkable 90 percent capacity rate over the last 10 seasons.

Its ideal location between sea level and ski level is an attraction. Natural amenities within the city include the Willamette River running through the heart of the city, and the two picturesque buttes, Skinner and Spencer, that frame the city at its northern and southern ends.

Winter sports are close at hand, and so are the miles of unspoiled beaches and many coastal lakes. Residents are drawn to Eugene by an excellent school system and progressive city government. Clean air and clean water are qualities that Eugeneans value.

days. The state is raging rivers, trickling brooks, mountain lakes, dramatic deserts and the powerful Pacific Ocean.

If America is a land of immigrants, Oregon is the end of the rainbow for people who traveled west and found a land too beautiful and promising to leave. There's an overpowering presence of things green in Oregon. The grass is green. The valleys are green. The towering trees are green. Everything is fresh, alive, growing.

Then, too, there are the beaches. Miles of pure, white sand.

To most residents, a large part of Oregon's magic stems from the fact that their jobs and homes are right in the middle of nature's giant playground. Recreation is only a small stride from your doorstep. Recreation here isn't a weekend thing or 50 weeks of backbreaking work for two weeks of vacation half a world away. It's available seven days a week in Oregon.

The state's recreation pursuits are rewarding and educationally stimulating for University of Oregon students. In the Eugene area, the recreational diversity is almost limitless. There is snow skiing and backpacking in the nearby Cascade Mountains. Water skiing is just minutes away. White water float trips down rushing mountains steams are a common undertaking. Bike paths are everywhere, and there are almost 50,000 bikes in Eugene alone — equalling one bike for every two people. Dubbed Track City U.S.A., it's unquestionably the running capital of the world, and jogging trails abound.

Fishing is one of Oregon's most popular sports. The Pacific Ocean and deep-sea fishing for ocean salmon is an hour away. And, the rainbow trout greet anglers in the McKenzie every spring. Oregon is a fisherman's paradise, capable of measuring up to the wildest fish stories.

On the ruggedly beautiful and uncrowded beaches of the Oregon Coast, beach campfires and nighttime hot dog roasts signal a pleasant good evening to splashing, Frisbee tossing and beach browsing of the day. There are oceanside crab feeds and beachcombing along Oregon's 400 miles of rugged shoreline. Private coves and inlets beg to be explored.

Golf is played at a feverish pitch by young and old Oregonians alike. The state has more golf courses per capita than any other U.S. state.

Every inch of the 400-mile coast line is publicly-owned. Oregonians live next to 227 state parks and 13 national forests.
