FROHNMAYER

- University President
- 12th Year
- Harvard '82

Dave Frohnmayer, a nationally recognized leader in higher education, is the 15th president of the University of Oregon, the state's 129-year-old center for liberal arts, science and professional studies. He assumed the presidency on July 1, 1994.

Under Frohnmayer's leadership, the university embarked on a sweeping set of new initiatives designed to guide the UO into the future, doubled its number of endowed chairs, increased curricular offerings, improved student-faculty ratios and increased annual giving by 50 percent. During his tenure, the Oregon Campaign, the most ambitious fund-raising drive in the state's history, attracted more than one-quarter billion dollars—$255.3 million—for UO scholarships, faculty support, programs and facilities.

A noted legal author and scholar, Frohnmayer served as dean of the University of Oregon's School of Law from 1992-94 before his appointment as president. He was Oregon's attorney general from 1981-91 and represented Oregon before the U.S. Supreme Court, personally winning six of seven cases. He served as president of the National Association of Attorneys General for and received that organization's prestigious Wyman Award as the state attorney general who best exemplifies the goals of the office. Prior to that, he was a UO professor of law from 1971-80 and represented District 40 (south Eugene and Goshen) in the Oregon House of Representatives for three two-year terms beginning in 1975.

A Medford native, Frohnmayer lives in Eugene with his wife, Lynn, and three children. Dave and Lynn Frohnmayer are founders of the Fanconi Anemia Research Fund, Inc., based in Eugene. This foundation funds path-breaking genetic research and sponsors an annual one-of-a-kind international symposium. They are also founders of the Fanconi Anemia support group for similarly afflicted families worldwide, and he is one of the founding directors of the national Marrow Donor Program.

Frohnmayer is the recipient of numerous awards, including the UO's Pioneer Award for outstanding leadership; the Oregon Association of Broadcasters' Tom McCall Award; the Outstanding Educator of America Award; Lewis and Clark College's Aubrey R. Watzek Award; and, with his wife Lynn, the Providence Child Care Center's Heart of Gold Award and the 1998 Eugene First Citizen Award.

A constitutional law expert, he is a Phi Beta Kappa 1962 graduate of Harvard College and attended Oxford University as a Rhodes Scholar, where he earned bachelor's and master's degrees. In 1967, he received his law degree from the University of California.

State Board of Higher Education

The Oregon State Board of Higher Education, the statutory governing board of the seven-campus Oregon State System of Higher Education, is composed of 11 members appointed by the governor and confirmed by the Oregon State Senate. Eight lay members are appointed for four-year terms, one faculty member is appointed for a two-year term and two members are students appointed for two-year terms. Current board members and the date their terms expire are as follows:

- | | |
| Henry Lorenzen, Pendleton, 2007 (President) | |

WILLIAMS

- Assistant to the President for Intercollegiate Athletics
- 26th Year
- Oregon '62

Former University vice president Dan Williams is in the first year of his new assignment as assistant to the president for Intercollegiate Athletics. With 26 years at the University, Williams is now a valuable consultant to athletics director Bill Moos.

Prior to his retirement from full-time duties in the summer of 2005, Williams served as vice president for administration, a position he had held since 1983. Among his many duties, Williams directly supervised intercollegiate athletics.

Williams also presided over the department as director of athletics for 11 months in 1994-95, a period that will be remembered as one of unparalleled success with an appearance in the Rose Bowl and NCAA bids in both men's and women's basketball.

He selected his successor in May 1995 with the appointment of Bill Moos as athletics director and presided over an extensive study that resulted in the decision to add women's soccer, in a concerted effort of increasing the opportunity for women to participate and compete in intercollegiate athletics.

A political science major, the Astoria native graduated from Oregon in 1962, also serving as ASUO student body president his senior year. He received his master's degree in public administration from the University of San Francisco in 1980. Prior to coming to Oregon as director of housing and associate dean of students in 1980, he was a student affairs officer at Stanford University.

Williams serves on the Board of Directors of Oregon Forest Resources Institute, Volunteers in Medicine Clinic, Liberty Bank and Bi-Mart Corporation. He also serves as a consultant to the Papé Group. His community service activities include membership on the Oregon Health Services Commission.

Williams and his wife Maureen are the parents of three children.

O'FALLON

- Faculty Representative
- 10th Year
- Kansas State '68

The University of Oregon's faculty athletic representative is James O'Fallon, a member of the School of Law faculty since 1981.

As the Frank Nash professor at Oregon, O'Fallon teaches constitutional law and jurisprudence.

The native of Gunnison, Colo., and graduate of Kansas State University earned his law degree from Stanford in 1972. He passed the California bar exam in 1973, after which, he served as a law clerk for the Ninth Circuit's United States Court of Appeals.

Prior to coming to Oregon, O'Fallon served on the law faculties at the University of Richmond and the University of Detroit, and was a National Endowment for the Humanities Fellow at Harvard.

In addition to functioning on behalf of the university president and registrar to maintain institutional accountability and record keeping, he acts as the voting delegate in all NCAA and Pacific-10 Conference meetings and verifies academic eligibility for all of Oregon's student-athletes. O'Fallon served as the interim representative in 1986-87 when Chapin Clark took a leave of absence from the University.

His scholarly work, including a path-breaking article on Marbury v. Madison, focuses on constitutional history and theory and philosophy.

MOOS

- Director of Athletics
- 11th Year
- Washington State '73

The investments made by Bill Moos early in his tenure as athletics director paid off in recent years with trophies from his 2001 Pac-10 champion and Fiesta Bowl winning football team, his 2002 Pac-10 champion and NCAA Elite Eight men's basketball team, and his 2002 WNIT champion women's basketball team.

But while he has changed the landscape of University of Oregon athletics, both figuratively and literally, Moos certainly isn't resting on his laurels— Moos is leading the charge for construction of a new on campus basketball arena.

Merely a glance at the Autzen Stadium expansion, Ed Moshofsky Sports Center, Casanova Center, and adjacent playing fields offers the magnitude of the ever-changing facility enhancements underway in Eugene.

Oregon Under Bill Moos

- 521 Academic All-Conference Selections
- 24 Academic All-America Selections
- 7 NCAA Post Graduate Scholars
- 8 Bowl Games
- 9 Pac-10 Championships
- 1 Pac-10 Tournament Championship
- 10 NCAA Basketball Tournaments
- 5 NCAA Championship Events Hosted
- 6 Pac-10 Championship Events Hosted

A driving force behind the most successful era of the University's athletics department in recent memory, Bill Moos is in his 11th year as the ninth man to serve as Oregon's director of athletics.

Moos has been responsible for initiating more than $160 million in facility improvements at Oregon. In addition, he renewed the department's commitment to the future with the $90 million Autzen Stadium renovation completed in 2002 that added 12,000 new seats, 32 new suites, a new Club at Autzen and a new press box.

In 1998, Moos witnessed other steps forward with the opening of the $14.6 million Ed Moshofsky Sports Center and Papé and Kilkenny Fields project, as well as the installation of a $4 million Opto Tech Megavision scoreboard in Autzen Stadium. That same year, the department successfully underwent the NCAA certification process.

He has said that it's often harder to keep a successful program moving forward than turning one around on the down slide. Yet Moos has clearly positioned Oregon on top of its game as it continues to be a trend-setter in college athletic circles on and off the field.

All the 53-year-old Washington native has done is preside over nine football seasons that set many of Oregon's attendance records, provided outstanding, yet fiscally prudent, trips for the Ducks to the 1996 Cotton, 1997 Las Vegas, 1998 Aloha, 1999 Sun, 2000 Holiday, 2002 Fiesta, 2002 Seattle and 2003 Sun bowls, helped streamline the organization's structure, overseen record numbers in fundraising and development each of the past nine years, and set in motion a number of facility enhancements.

Always looking for ways to increase revenue sources, Moos spearheaded a five-year, $3.7 million contract with ESPN Regional five years ago to become one of only six schools with such an arrangement, also helping fund an annual budget of now nearly $40 million.

Under Moos' tutelage, facility improvements have been a major priority. The department spent $3.5 million on McArthur Court in his first two years in updating the 78-year-old structure, including remodeling the outer hallways, as well as redesigning and modernizing the services for the student-athlete center.

Attendance has soared at McArthur Court in both men's and women's basketball the past nine years. In men's basketball, the excitement since hiring former Duck player Ernie Kent has reached a fever pitch, especially as the Ducks won their first outright league title in 63 years in 2001-02. Mac Court has attracted crowds in excess of 9,000 fans 37 times the past seven years. In women's basketball, Oregon was once led the Pac-10 in attendance (3,896). The Ducks successfully hosted the first and second rounds of the 2003 NCAA Tournament. That came on the heels of serving as host of the first Pac-10 women's tournament and winning the WNIT championship in 2001-02. In 1999-00, a record average of 5,852 fans attended games to watch the Ducks claim their second straight conference title.

However, Oregon's success under Moos has not been confined to football and basketball. Representatives from at least 10 of the Ducks' 18 intercollegiate sports have advanced to postseason play each of the past seven seasons, including 12 sports in 2004-05. And in the classroom, more than 500 UO student-athletes have earned Pac-10 all-academic honors during his tenure.

Then there's the icing on the cake: Oregon is one of only a handful of athletic departments nation wide that is self-sufficient. The UO athletic department generates enough revenue to cover its entire budget and does not take a single dollar from the University's general fund.

All that since he assumed the duties of director in July, 1995 after five successful years in the same position at the University of Montana.

Moos began his athletics career in 1982 as assistant athletics director at Washington State University and also served as the school's associate director (1988-90). The 1973 Washington State graduate was a Pacific-8 all-conference offensive lineman in 1972.

During his Montana tenure, he created an academic support program and hired its first athletic academic coordinator, developed a facility enhancement plan that created more than $4 million in improvements and lifted the school's fund-raising efforts to show a 300 percent increase in private and corporate gifts.

Earning the respect of his counterparts from across the country, he has twice served at the executive vice president of the Pac-10 council, in addition to a dozen other committee appointments, including the NCAA Football Issues, Rose Bowl Management, Pac-10 Revenue Sharing, Pac-10 Long Range Planning (chair), Pac-10 Men's Basketball Tournament (chair), Pac-10 Bowl, Pac-10 Championships, Pac-10 Compliance & Enforcement and Pac-10 Television.

At Washington State, he was director of development for 5 1/2 years and associate director for nearly two years, supervising all external operations. Prior to that, he managed and owned private businesses in Washington and Oregon for eight years.

He was a student assistant football coach at Washington State for the 1973 season, then spent part of 1974 in Washington, D.C., serving as a government intern.

Raised on a wheat and cattle ranch in eastern Washington, Moos (1-3-51) attended high school in Olympia when his father served in the governor's cabinet.

Moos earned his B.A. degree in history and was a three-year letterman in football before concluding his collegiate career by playing in the East-West Shrine all-star game in San Francisco.

In 2004, Moos was recognized by his alma mater when he received the prestigious Washington State University Alumni Achievement Award. He's also been the recipient of the Convention and Visitors Association of Lane County Leadership Award (2004), The Oregonian's Top Five Most Influential People in the State of Oregon Sports (2003) and the General Neyland Lifetime Achievement Award, presented by the All-American Football Foundation (1999).

Preceding Moos as Oregon's director of athletics have been Leo Harris (1948-67), Len Casanova (1967-70), Norv Ritchey (1970-76), John Caine (1976-81), Rick Bay (1981-84), Bill Byrne (1984-92), Rich Brooks (1992-94) and Dan Williams (1994-95).

Moos and his wife Kendra have three daughters: Christa (9-25-80), Brittany (6-11-84) and Kaiti (1-6-95); and two sons, Bo (2-19-89) and Benjamin (5-7-98).

BAUMGARTNER

- Senior Associate AD/
Sr. Women's Administrator
- 17th Year
- USC '87

Now in her 17th year at Oregon, former Duck head women's golf coach Renee Mack Baumgartner was elevated to senior associate athletic director in the spring of 2002. She also serves as the Duck's senior women's administrator, a post she has held since the winter of 1999.

Administrative duties for Baumgartner, who was inducted into the National Golf Coaches Hall of Fame in January, 2004, include overseeing the Ducks' women's basketball, men's and women's golf, men's and women's tennis, women's lacrosse and volleyball programs, as well as strength and conditioning, medical treatment and student services (Life Skills program). In addition, she is the department's liaison to the Oregon School Activities Association (OSAA).

The Portland, Ore., native retired from her duties as head women's golf coach following the 2000 season after building Oregon into one of the nation's premier programs. The Ducks posted three top-14 finishes at the NCAA Championships in her final four seasons at the helm.

In 1997, Oregon finished seventh at the NCAA tournament while Baumgartner was rewarded with Pacific-10 Conference and Far West District Coach of the Year honors.

Baumgartner (3-19-65) began her coaching career at Oregon in 1987 and coached through the 1993 season, guiding the team to its first NCAA tournament appearance and 17th place in 1993. Afterwards, she served a two-year stint at her alma mater, USC, before beginning her second tour of duty in Eugene in 1995.

As an athlete, she was a four-year letterwinner on the Women of Troy golf teams which finished third and fourth nationally in 1986 and '87. As USC's head coach, she led the team to a second-place finish at the 1994 NCAA Championships, hosted by the University of Oregon at The Oregon Golf Club in West Linn.

She graduated from Southern California in 1987 with a degree in sports information/broadcast journalism. In 1989, she completed her master's degree requirements and in 1996 was awarded a Ph.D. from Oregon in educational administration.

Recently, she was appointed to the NCAA Division I Academics/Eligibility/Compliance Cabinet (term 2003-07). Baumgartner will also serve on a subcommittee that will focus on legislative review and interpretations.

She and her husband, Scott, a teacher and coach at Eugene's Sheldon High School, are the parents of two daughters, Ellie Mack (3-11-97) and Abby Mack (2-26-00).

HEEKE

- Senior Associate AD/
Chief of Staff
- 18th Year
- Albion '85

Now in his 18th year at Oregon, Dave Heeke serves the Athletic Department in the dual roles of senior associate athletic director and chief of staff. He has managed the Ducks' external operations for the past eight years.

Heeke (10-8-63) oversees Oregon's broadcasting, development, food services, marketing and promotions, media services, sponsorships, tickets and video offices within the department.

He also provides administrative guidance for the men's basketball, football, soccer and softball programs, acts as the department's radio and television liaison and handles football and basketball scheduling.

Among his many duties are the negotiation of the Ducks' television and radio packages, in conjunction with ESPN Regional, a multimillion dollar partnership now in its seventh year of managing the multimedia rights for the athletic department. Heeke has been at the forefront of marketing the athletic department and seeking new revenue streams for the program.

Included among those projects was the installation of the Opto Tech Megavision replay scoreboard in Autzen Stadium's west end zone in 1998, a $4 million project now called DuckVision. His efforts helped the Ducks pay for the board outright and maintain the advertising rights in-house.

Prior to being elevated to Senior Associate Athletic Director in 2002, Heeke also oversaw the Duck Athletic Fund and was responsible for a complete reorganization of the department's annual fund-raising efforts. Under his leadership, annual fund-raising totals increased from $3.6 to $7.8 million. After three years with the Duck Athletic Fund in Portland, Heeke assumed the duties of director of broadcasting and marketing and successfully combined the efforts as executive producer of the Oregon Sports Network to market the department's events, while generating record revenues for the University.

Heeke joined the Portland DAF office in 1988 to escalate the sale of season tickets and assist with community affairs on behalf of the athletic department in northern Oregon and southern Washington. He was elevated to co-director of the fund-raising office in 1989.

Heeke was assistant events coordinator at Michigan State before joining Oregon's staff. The former baseball and hockey player earned his undergraduate degree at Albion College in 1985 and a master's in athletic administration from Ohio State. He and wife Liz are parents of sons Ryan (6-29-93), Max (3-6-96) and Zach (9-11-97).

ESPN Plus is now in its seventh season of complementing the Oregon Sports Network by serving as an extension of the sales, marketing and production efforts for the Oregon Athletic Department. ESPN Plus is in the middle of a five-year contract with the University that will keep Oregon athletics on ESPN Plus through the 2007-08 season.

Under the five-year agreement, the subsidiary of ABC Inc., and Walt Disney World Corp., focuses on the growth of the athletic department's corporate sponsorship programs, providing sponsorship opportunities for radio, TV, promotions and signage.

The local ESPN Plus office is run by director of institutions Tim Roberts, a 1987 Oregon graduate and a previous regional director for the Oregon Duck Athletic Fund. Jere Hanks, a 1992 Oregon graduate, serves as senior account executive in Portland, while 1997 Kansas graduate Shelly Canada and 1991 Oregon graduate Achelle Frichette are Eugene-based account executives. Courtney Oversby, a 2000 Oregon graduate, is the sales assistant in Eugene.

More than a century of athletic heritage is the focal point behind the recognition of some of the University of Oregon's greatest athletic immortals of all time with the founding of Oregon's Athletic Hall of Fame in 1992.

Spearheaded by former director of athletics Bill Byrne, the formation of the Hall was established to permanently honor athletes, coaches and administrators who have been a part of the University's rich athletic heritage over the course of decades. The select few who are elected for induction represents the very best the University of Oregon has to offer and who have brought honor to themselves and teammates.

Each spring the selection committee reviews the candidates, with all nominees' eligibility for induction commencing 10 years following their departure from the University.

Plaques honoring each of the inductees and their achievements are permanently displayed as part of the University's Hall of Champions, located on the second floor of the Len Casanova Athletic Center.

The showcase is divided into three distinct areas that pay tribute to great Oregon athletes of the past. The Hall's main corridor features an array of showcases housing many of the trophies and plaques won by Oregon teams and athletes over the years.

The north wing contains depictions of memorable sports moments, traditions and achievements in Oregon lore. It includes time lines that show the development of the University's athletic department as well as the evolution of the equipment and traditions that have made the Oregon experience what it is today.

Reserved for the south wing is Oregon's Hall of Fame, where the greatest sports immortals are enshrined as the very best the University has to offer and who have brought honor to the educational institution as well as their teammates.

The athletic showcase is open to the public free of charge weekdays from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. and four hours prior to the start of every home football game.

Twenty-seven individuals and three teams were included among the Hall of Fame's inaugural class of inductees in 1992. The Hall of Fame will encompass 144 individual honorees as well as 15 select teams following the coronation of the 14th class in 2005, with this year's activities centered around the weekend of Nov. 5 when the Ducks play host to California.
