

The inferior articular processes of the fifth sacral vertebra project inferiorly on either side of the sacral hiatus, forming the sacral cornua. They articulate with the corresponding processes of the coccyx, the coccygeal cornua.