

The superficial posterior sacro-coccygeal ligament is a flat band passing from the margins of the sacral hiatus to the dorsal surface of the coccyx, completing the roof of the lower sacral canal.