

The posterior trunk of the internal iliac vein is a variable short trunk located at the superior margin of the greater sciatic foramen. It is formed by the union of the superior gluteal, iliolumbar and superior and inferior lateral sacral veins and drains into the internal iliac vein.