

The lateral sacral veins accompany their corresponding artery. They pass from the skin and muscles on the dorsum of the sacrum through the first or second dorsal (posterior) then ventral (anterior) sacral foramina to drain into the internal iliac vein. They are interconnected with the inferior lateral sacral veins via the sacral venous plexus.