

The inferior lateral sacral veins accompany their corresponding artery and its branches. They pass from the skin and muscles on the dorsum of the sacrum through the lower dorsal (posterior) then ventral (anterior) sacral foramina to drain into the internal iliac vein. They are interconnected with the superior lateral sacral veins via the sacral venous plexus.