

The sciatic nerve can be represented by a line beginning midway between the posterior superior iliac spine and ischial tuberosity and ending midway between the greater trochanter and ischial tuberosity, continuing vertically in the midline of the posterior thigh to the superior angle of the popliteal fossa.