

The pharyngeal tubercle is a small raised roughened area located in the midline anterior to the foramen magnum on the basilar part of the bone. It gives attachment to the pharyngeal raphe and the upper fibers of the superior constrictor of the pharynx.