

The foramen transversarium is an opening in the transverse process. It is bounded anteriorly by the embryonic costal element (process), posteriorly by the embryonic transverse process, laterally by the costal (or costotransverse) lamina (bar) and medially by the pedicle. It transmits the vertebral vein, vertebral artery and associated sympathetic plexus.