

The pedicles of C2 (axis) are stout postero-lateral projections that connect the body to the transverse processes. The superior surfaces carry part of the superior articular facets, which are often thin laterally. The vertebral vessels groove the antero-lateral surfaces and the inferior surfaces have deep smooth inferior vertebral notches.