

The short bifid spinous process of the cervical vertebra arises from the junction of the two laminae. Multifidus, semispinalis cervicis and spinalis cervicis attach antero-posteriorly to the process; while interspinales attaches near the apex and the ligamentum nuchae attaches to the apical notch.