

The pedicles of the thoracic vertebrae are short and pass almost directly posteriorly from the upper half of the vertebral body to the laminae. They have deep inferior and shallow superior vertebral notches.