

The costotransverse ligament extend between the rib neck and its adjacent corresponding transverse process. The ligament fills the costotransverse foramen. The short fibers extend from the posterior surface of the neck to the anterior surface of the transverse process.