

The lateral costotransverse ligaments are short, thick, strong bands. They pass obliquely from the apex of the transverse process to the non-articular part of the rib tubercle. For upper ribs the ligament is shorter and directed superiorly from the transverse process, while for lower ribs it is directed inferiorly.