

The atlanto-occipital joints are enclosed by loose fibrous capsules, which are thicker posteriorly and laterally. The capsules attach to the margins of the superior articular surfaces of C1 (atlas) inferiorly and to the occipital condyles superiorly.