

The posterior radicular veins typically originate at and drain each of the dorsal nerve roots and the pial plexus of the spinal cord. They exit the vertebral canal with the dorsal nerve roots through the corresponding intervertebral foramen.