

The external occipital protuberance is a palpable bony prominence found at the upper end of the median posterior nuchal furrow.