

The acromion of the scapula is subcutaneous and lies above the shoulder joint. The upper flat surface can be readily palpated from the acromioclavicular joint anteriorly to the most lateral part of the scapular spine posteriorly.