

The first thoracic ventral rami cross the first rib behind the subclavian artery to participate in the brachial plexus. The second to twelfth thoracic ventral rami pass below the corresponding transverse processes to enter and run in the subcostal groove of corresponding ribs in the upper part of the intercostal space.