

The medial branches of the second cervical dorsal spinal rami, also referred to as the greater occipital nerve. It supplies the skin over the posterior aspects of the skull as far forward as the vertex.