

The transverse cutaneous nerves of the neck supply skin from the anterior midline below the mandibles as low as the sternum curving postero-superiorly to the angles of the mandibles.