

The medial branches from the lower seven thoracic sympathetic ganglia are large. They provide branches to the aorta and unite to form the greater, lesser and least splanchnic nerves.