

The lowest splanchnic nerve emerges from the twelfth thoracic ganglion and consists of myelinated preganglionic efferent and visceral afferent fibers. It descends infero-medially on the vertebral bodies, pierces the crus of the diaphragm with the sympathetic trunk to terminate in the renal plexus.