

Come Together and Unite

by Rob Evans, The Donut Man

Esther knew what every Jew
would have to do, “Today’s the day, unite and pray,
or we’re through!”

Esther would go, but if the king said, “No,” uh-oh.

She would die, but it was worth
the try, so, you know—

We must never fight.
Come together and unite.

Pray with all your might.
Brother, sister, do what’s right.

We must never fight.
Come together and unite.

Pray with all your might.
Brother, sister, do what’s right.

Listen to what I’m sayin’,
after they’re done prayin’,

The king tells Esther, “You’re so fine,
We’ll take these bad men, huh!
Put an end to ‘em!

It’s Haman who will be on the line.”

The prayer came true. The king could not refuse.

That day the Jews didn’t lose, they learned it was best to choose—

We must never fight.
Come together and unite.

Pray with all your might.
Brother, sister, do what’s right.
