

You can make a new numbered theorem-like environment with `\definenum-beredtheorem`. This macro takes one argument, the name of the environment. The first letter of the name will be capitalized when it is typeset. Analogously, you can use `\defineunnumberedtheorem` to make a new unnumbered theorem-like environment. These commands can only be used before `\body`.