CD/Spectrum Pro, Version 3.3.331

Author: Synthesoft

This is a 32-bit program

More Information: <http://www.synthesoft.com/>

Description: A 32-bit shareware CD-audio player with graphical spectrum analyzer for Windows 95 and Windows NT 4.0. CD/Spectrum Pro has several independent parts: The CD-Audio player, the Mixer, the visuals window, and the spectrum analyzer. The CD-Audio player has almost every feature you can find on any software CD player--programmed mode, intro mode, optional taskbar icon operation, auto-play, auto-exit, auto-eject, artist/track/title database, etc. It also recognizes CDP files which can save you from typing in all the track/title information for your CDs. It also can communicate with the CDDDB servers on the Internet to download CD information. The mixer allows you to control the recording volume, output volume, etc. through standard Windows mixer interfaces. The spectrum analyzer graphically depicts the frequency spectra of the CD music in real time. You may use any of the components without effect on the others. In other words, if you don't like the CD player, you can close it and use only the spectrum analyzer, or the other way around.

Author: Know-It Software Products

This is a 32-bit program

More Information: <http://know-it.com/>

Description: Use Environs to create dynamic life-like audio environments. By choosing and mixing numerous background sounds and assorted random sounds, you create a complete audio atmosphere. With Environs, you select from 23 different background sounds as underlying base for your audio theme. Select up to three at a time to be mixed together. Next, select over 30 different sounds to add randomly to your background. For each sound, decide if you want it to happen frequently, occasionally, rarely, or never. Adjust the volume of both background sounds and the event sounds as you prefer, without affecting your basic computer settings. Nearly unlimited combinations can be created as you design your own audio world. Once you have it just the way you like it, you can save the settings as an 'Environs Scenario' for easy recall later. Create as many scenarios as you want.

ICE.NFS, Version 1.5.2

Author: J. River, Inc.

This is a 32-bit program

More Information: <http://www.jriver.com/>

Description: ICE.NFS is a standards based NFS and provides a virtual drive in Windows 95 for access to data on a UNIX host. Users mount the UNIX drive as if it were any other network server attached via Windows Explorer. Installation and changes are made easy with a Windows 95 Wizard. The user picks a host to mount (host name automatically matched with an IP Address by ICE.NFS) and is prompted for a password (if required). The user then is set up to mount the host drive permanently or as needed. The new mounted drive is like any other Windows 95 drive and files on the UNIX Host may be easily opened, transferred, copied, and attached.

ClipMate, Version 4.26

Author: Thornsoft Development

This is a 32-bit program

More Information: <http://www.thornsoft.com/>

Description: An answer to the age-old question: "Isn't there a better way to cut and paste in Windows?" ClipMate is designed to enhance the functionality of the Windows clipboard. As you probably realize, the cut/copy/paste capability of Windows works well for transferring single items of data, but becomes very cumbersome if you want to move a lot of data or keep data for a period of time longer than until your next cut or copy (at which time Windows overwrites the Clipboard whether you were ready or not!) ClipMate works alongside the regular clipboard in Windows by capturing every piece of data that you copy to the clipboard, and storing it in a collection. ClipMate can easily store hundreds of text and graphic data items. Once the data is in ClipMate, you can select an item and it is automatically placed back on the Clipboard, ready to paste into any application. You can view, print, edit, re-format, convert to upper/lower case, search for, re-name, and re-order clip items. ClipMate will help you be sure that you never accidentally lose a piece of data to the Clipboard that you might have been able to use again later, and offers all the functionality you'd expect from a fully-featured Clipboard utility.

Win95 Enhanced Clipboard, Version 1.1

Author: Super Simple Software
This is a 32-bit program
More Information: <http://com.primenet.com/sssware/index.html>
Description: A utility which replaces the Windows Clipboard when it's AutoCopy mode is enabled, and allows an "unlimited" number of individual text items (64 K bytes) to be copied into itself using the copy or cut commands within Windows applications. Each new item is appended to the contents of the window, and a blank line is inserted between entries. At any time the AutoCopy feature may be disabled, allowing the saved text to be copied and pasted into other text applications. An option is also available to enable or disable the program's "Always on Top" property. This feature is useful when repeatedly copying and pasting selected text items, as the form does not become hidden when selecting an area to paste text into another application. The program also provides buttons to launch Windows Write and Notepad for saving selected items into a file, without having to search for the icons. This program is very handy for "Net Surfers" to use while browsing, enabling them to add URLs and desired text information on e-mail addresses, interesting titles, etc. without having to stop and save each item to a file. The stored text can be saved out offline after leaving the Internet or an Online service, saving money on connect time.

More Information: <http://www.alumni.caltech.edu/~lim/shorthand/>

Description: A typing productivity and document assembly utility designed to work concurrently with other Windows applications. Shorthand allows you to represent frequently used words, phrases, paragraphs and keyboard combinations with a much shorter command or keyword. Instead of typing in the word or phrase, you type the shorter keyword and Shorthand will insert the associated text directly into the target application. With Shorthand, you can also define shortcut keys to quickly play back predefined text, run keyboard macros or launch other applications. Shorthand is not limited to transferring static text, you can embed special fields ("tags") such as input fields, pick list fields and date fields that allow you to dynamically create custom reports.

CT Hotspot, Version 2.2

Author: CT Software
This is a 32-bit program
More Information: <http://members.aol.com/ron2222>
Description: A small utility with which you can create 2 hotspots--1 to turn your screensaver on, and the other to turn it off. This can be quite useful when running Defrag, downloading a large file, or doing a tape backup. Having a screensaver come on during these activities can wreck havoc with your computer and your files. Run the CT HotSpot Setup program to define your preferred hotspots first. Then put the CT HotSpot program in your StartUp folder, restart Windows, and you're in business! You will see a little flag pop up when your screensaver is disabled, letting you know that CT HotSpot is doing what it's supposed to be doing. As long as your cursor is parked in the appropriate corner, your screensaver cannot come on. Simply moving the mouse will restore your screensaver settings. Of course, CT HotSpot will also set up a corner to start your screensaver, which can be pretty handy if your boss walks in on you in the middle of a solitaire game, or if you want to impress your friends with your latest screensaver "find".

Author: SoftByte Laboratories
This is a 32-bit program
More Information: <http://www.softbytelabs.com/>
Description: Makes renaming groups of files easy, with a host of options and functions sure to appeal to Webmasters and lay users alike. Webmasters will especially appreciate the power to rename sequential files, for example. Those of us with an organizational fixation will enjoy the simple ability to rename several files at once. Navigate to your target folder, and apply a file selection mask with NameWiz to narrow files down to the group you want. You can quickly change files to all lowercase (useful for the many Web sites which observe that format), to all uppercase, or normal case formatting. When you enable batch renaming, you can specify the file name prefix, starting number, increment intervals, and better yet, you can increment alphabetically too. NameWiz can handle long filenames and is a time-saving gem of a program.

Wilbur, Version 1.61

Author: RedTree Development, Inc.

This is a 32-bit program

More Information: <http://www.redtree.com>

Description: Wilbur's mission is to help you find things in all those files you accumulate on your hard disk. He does this by creating an index of all the words in a given set of files that you define. For instance you might want an index of all the TXT, DOC, and WRI files on your C: drive. Once the index is prepared, Wilbur can quickly show you a list of all the files containing any word or group of words. He can also show you a view of the sought after words in context in any file selected. In addition to simple word searches, Wilbur allows word descriptions to contain wild cards and simple logical expressions. Wilbur can even index the files inside Zip archives on your disk. You can also configure most word processors and program development environments with hot keys that automatically start a Wilbur search for the word under the cursor.

This is a 32-bit program

More Information: <http://www.oopsware.com/>

Description: Sifter is a new type of image management utility. With Sifter, you will find it exceedingly easy to view, convert, sort and delete all common image formats. This software was written in response to a need that arose with the introduction of applications specifically designed to automatically download images from the Internet. After letting one of these applications run for several hours, I find myself with a directory full of images and no convenient way of sorting through them. Other image viewing applications are written to view, edit and save images. They are not designed to view and delete; Sifter is.

More Information: <http://www.acrosoft.com/>

Description: Virtual F.I.D.O. (Filing, Imaging, & Distributed Object) software provides the document imaging and information "object" management and organizational tools you need to achieve productivity improvement and eliminate information congestion by easily gathering, indexing, filing, and retrieving information in a timely fashion. As your 32-bit "working platform", Virtual F.I.D.O. uses a file cabinet and folder metaphor, allowing you to create unlimited cabinets that can contain unlimited folders which can hold unlimited "objects". These objects can be paper, photos, or any PC-based file such as word processing, spreadsheets, text files etc. Objects can be located and placed on a local basis or over a wide area network. Virtual F.I.D.O. lets you load your information through direct scanning, object importing and object creating (without leaving your working platform) and you can label or index your information using long filenames. Your information can be exported or moved from one folder (or cabinet) to another using simple drag and drop operations. Virtual F.I.D.O. provides you with object, folder and/or cabinet security that can be enacted at your discretion using your passwords. Virtual F.I.D.O. provides search capabilities by title, date, media type, or keyword. Each created folder contains a comments log and individual objects within a folder can be notated with comments also.

BlackWidow is a site browser that will completely reconstruct a Web site in an FTP-like window. The site's profile is presented in a Windows 95 Explorer format showing file sizes and last modified dates. It can be used to download all files (or selectively across folders) from a Web site. You may save the site's profile for later use (.web files) and/or merge other profiles together. BlackWidow consists of two separate programs operating independently from each other. You may download from a Web site while another is having it's profile constructed. Multiple instances are supported, as well as unlimited simultaneous downloads from any Web site. Long file names are supported as well as all linked extensions.

More Information: <http://www.nasa.gov/>

Description: View of the Earth as seen by the Apollo 17 crew traveling toward the moon on December 7, 1972. This translunar coast photograph extends from the Mediterranean Sea area to the Antarctica south polar ice cap. This is the first time the Apollo trajectory made it possible to photograph the south polar ice cap. Note the heavy cloud cover in the southern hemisphere. Almost the entire coastline of Africa is clearly visible. The Arabian Peninsula can be seen at the northeastern edge of Africa. The large island off the coast of Africa is the Malagasy Republic. The Asian mainland is on the horizon toward the northeast.

More Information: <http://www.jpl.nasa.gov/radar/sircxsar/cities.html>

Description: This image of the area surrounding Boston, Massachusetts, shows how a spaceborne radar system distinguishes between densely populated urban areas and nearby areas that are relatively unsettled. The bright white area at the right center of the image is downtown Boston. The wide river below and to the left of the city is the Charles River in Boston's Back Bay neighborhood. The dark green patch to the right of the Back Bay is Boston Common. A bridge across the north end of Back Bay connects the cities of Boston and Cambridge. The light green areas that dominate most of the image are the suburban communities surrounding Boston. The many ponds that dot the region appear as dark irregular spots. Many densely populated urban areas show up as red in the image due to the alignment of streets and buildings to the incoming radar beam. North is toward the upper left. The image was acquired on October 9, 1994, by the Spaceborne Imaging Radar-C/X-Band Synthetic Aperture Radar as it flew aboard the space shuttle Endeavour. This area is centered at 42.4 degrees North latitude, 71.2 degrees West longitude. The area shown is approximately 37 km by 18 km (23 miles by 11 miles).

More Information: <http://www.jpl.nasa.gov/radar/sircxsar/cities.html>

Description: This image shows the Hampton Roads, Virginia region, where the James River (upper left center) flows into the Chesapeake Bay. The city of Norfolk is the bright area on the peninsula in the lower center. Norfolk is home to a large naval base, part of which can be seen as the bright white port facilities near the center of the image. The cities of Hampton and Newport News occupy the peninsula in the upper right of the image. The dark blue areas on this peninsula are the runways of Langley Air Force Base, which also houses NASA's Langley Research Center. Forested areas, including suburbs, appear as green on the image. Cities appear as green, white and orange. The purple areas along the shorelines are wetlands; blue areas are cleared for agricultural use. Faint ship wakes can be seen in the water behind ships entering and leaving Hampton Roads. Scientists are using radar images like this one to study delicate coastal environments and the effects of urbanization and other human activities on the ecosystem and landscape. The image was acquired by the Spaceborne Imaging Radar-C/X-band Synthetic Aperture (SIR-C/X-SAR) imaging radar when it flew aboard the space shuttle Endeavour on October 5, 1994. The image is centered at 36.9 degrees north latitude, 76.4 degrees west longitude. North is towards the upper right. The area shown is 37 kilometers by 29 kilometers (23 miles by 18 miles).

More Information: <http://www.jpl.nasa.gov/radar/sircxsar/cities.html>

Description: This spaceborne radar image shows the city of Honolulu, Hawaii and adjacent areas on the island of Oahu. Honolulu lies on the south shore of the island, along the bottom of this image. Diamond Head, an extinct volcanic crater, is seen in the lower right. The bright white strip left of Diamond Head is the Waikiki Beach area. Further west are the downtown area and harbor. Runways of the airport can be seen in the lower left. The Koolau mountain range runs through the center of the image. The steep cliffs on the north side of the range are thought to be remnants of massive landslides that ripped apart the volcanic mountains that built the island thousands of years ago. On the North shore of the island are the Mokapu peninsula and Kaneohe Bay. Densely vegetated areas appear green in this radar image, while urban areas generally appear orange, red or white. Images such as this can be used by land use planners to monitor urban development and its effect on the tropical environment. The image was acquired by the Spaceborne Imaging Radar-C/X-Band Synthetic Aperture Radar onboard the space shuttle Endeavour on October 6, 1994. The image is 20.6 kilometers by 31.0 kilometers (12.8 miles by 19.2 miles) and is centered at 21.4 degrees North latitude, 157.8 degrees West longitude. North is toward the upper left.

This is a 32-bit program

More Information: <http://www.jpl.nasa.gov/radar/sircxsar/cities.html>

Description: This image of Houston, Texas, shows the amount of detail that is possible to obtain using spaceborne radar imaging. Images such as this--obtained by the Spaceborne Imaging Radar-C/X-band Synthetic Aperture Radar flying aboard the space shuttle Endeavor--can become an effective tool for urban planners who map and monitor land use patterns in urban, agricultural and wetland areas. Central Houston appears pink and white in the upper portion of the image, outlined and crisscrossed by freeways. The image was obtained on October 10, 1994. The area shown is 100 kilometers by 60 kilometers (62 miles by 38 miles) and is centered at 29.38 degrees North latitude, 95.1 degrees West longitude. North is toward the upper left. The pink areas designate urban development while the green- and blue-patterned areas are agricultural fields. Black areas are bodies of water, including Galveston Bay along the right edge and the Gulf of Mexico at the bottom of the image. Interstate 45 runs from top to bottom through the image. The narrow island at the bottom of the image is Galveston Island, with the city of Galveston at its northeast (right) end. The dark cross in the upper center of the image is Hobby Airport. Ellington Air Force Base is visible below Hobby on the other side of Interstate 45. Clear Lake is the dark body of water in the middle right of the image. The green square just north of Clear Lake is Johnson Space Center, home of Mission Control and the astronaut training facilities. The black rectangle with a white center that appears to the left of the city center is the Houston Astrodome.

Description: This space image illustrates the recent rapid urban development occurring along the lower Colorado River at the Nevada/Arizona state line. Lake Mohave is the dark feature that occupies the river valley in the upper half of the image. The lake is actually a reservoir created behind Davis Dam, the bright white line spanning the river near the center of the image. The dam, completed in 1953, is used both for generating electric power and regulating the river's flow downstream. Straddling the river south of Davis Dam, shown in white and bright green, are the cities of Laughlin, Nevada (west of the river) and Bullhead City, Arizona (east of the river). The runway of the Laughlin, Bullhead City Airport is visible as a dark strip just East of Bullhead City. The area has experienced rapid growth associated with the gambling industry in Laughlin and on the Fort Mojave Indian Reservation to the south. The community of Riviera is the bright green area in a large bend of the river in the lower left part of the image. Complex drainage patterns and canyons are the dark lines seen throughout the image. Radar is a useful tool for studying these patterns because of the instrument's sensitivity to roughness, vegetation and subtle topographic differences. This image is 50 kilometers by 35 kilometers (31 miles by 22 miles) and is centered at 35.25 degrees North latitude, 114.67 degrees West longitude. North is toward the upper right. The image was acquired by the Spaceborne Imaging Radar-C/X-band Synthetic Aperture Radar on April 13, 1994, onboard the space shuttle Endeavour.

More Information: <http://www.jpl.nasa.gov/radar/sircxsar/cities.html>

Description: This spaceborne radar image shows the "Valley Island" of Maui, Hawaii. The cloud-penetrating capabilities of radar provide a rare view of many parts of the island, since the higher elevations are frequently shrouded in clouds. The light blue and yellow areas in the lowlands near the center are sugar cane fields. The three major population centers, Lahaina on the left at the western tip of island, Wailuku left of center, and Kihei in the lower center appear as small yellow, white or purple mottled areas. West Maui volcano, in the lower left, is 1,800 meters high (5,900 feet) and is considered extinct. The entire eastern half of the island consists of East Maui volcano, which rises to an elevation of 3,200 meters (10,500 feet) and features a spectacular crater called Haleakala at its summit. The multi-wavelength capability of the SIR-C radar also permits differences in the vegetation cover on the middle flanks of East Maui to be identified. Rain forests appear in yellow, while grassland is shown in dark green, pink and blue. Radar images such as this one are being used by scientists to understand volcanic processes and to assess potential threats that future activity may pose to local populations. This image was acquired by Spaceborne Imaging Radar-C/X-Band Synthetic Aperture Radar onboard the space shuttle Endeavour on April 16, 1994. The image is 73.7 kilometers by 48.7 kilometers (45.7 miles by 30.2 miles) and is centered at 20.8 degrees North latitude, 156.4 degrees West longitude. North is toward the upper left.

More Information: <http://www.jpl.nasa.gov/radar/sircxsar/cities.html>

Description: This image of the area surrounding the city of New Orleans, Louisiana, demonstrates the ability of multi-frequency imaging radar to distinguish different types of land cover. The dark area in the center is Lake Pontchartrain. The thin line running across the lake is a causeway connecting New Orleans to the city of Mandeville. Lake Borgne is the dark area in the lower right of the image. The Mississippi River appears as a dark, wavy line in the lower left. The white dots on the Mississippi are ships. The French Quarter is the brownish square near the left center of the image. Lakefront Airport, a field used mostly for general aviation, is the bright spot near the center, jutting out into Lake Pontchartrain. The image was acquired by the Spaceborne Imaging Radar C/X-Band Synthetic Aperture Radar by the space shuttle Endeavour on October 2, 1994. The area is located at 30.10 degrees North latitude and 89.1 degrees West longitude. The area shown is approximately 100 kilometers (60 miles) by 50 kilometers (30 miles). The green areas are primarily vegetation consisting of swamp land and swamp forest (bayou) growing on sandy soil, while the pink areas are associated with reflections from buildings in urban and suburban areas. Different tones and colors in the vegetation areas will be studied by scientists to see how effective imaging radar data is in discriminating between different types of wetlands. Accurate maps of coastal wetland areas are important to ecologists studying wild fowl and the coastal environment.

More Information: <http://www.jpl.nasa.gov/radar/sircxsar/cities.html>

Description: This is an image of the New York city metropolitan area. The island of Manhattan appears in the center of the image. The green-colored rectangle on Manhattan is Central Park. This image was acquired by the Spaceborne Imaging Radar-C/X-band Synthetic Aperture Radar aboard the space shuttle Endeavour on October 10, 1994. North is toward the upper right. The area shown is 75.0 kilometers by 48.8 kilometers (46.5 miles by 30.2 miles). The image is centered at 40.7 degrees north latitude and 73.8 degrees west longitude. In general, light blue areas correspond to dense urban development, green areas to moderately vegetated zones and black areas to bodies of water. The Hudson River is the black strip that runs from the left edge to the upper right corner of the image. It separates New Jersey, in the upper left of the image, from New York. The Atlantic Ocean is at the bottom of the image where two barrier islands along the southern shore of Long Island are also visible. John F. Kennedy International Airport is visible above these islands. Long Island Sound, separating Long Island from Connecticut, is the dark area right of the center of the image. Many bridges are visible in the image, including the Verrazano Narrows, George Washington and Brooklyn bridges. The radar illumination is from the left of the image; this causes some urban zones to appear red because the streets are at a perpendicular angle to the radar pulse. Radar images like this one could be used as a tool for city planners and resource managers to map and monitor land use patterns. The radar imaging systems can clearly detect the variety of landscapes in the area, as well as the density of urban development.

Description: Spaceborne radar image of the city of Sacramento, California. Urban areas appear pink and the surrounding agricultural areas are green and blue. The Sacramento River is the curving dark line running from the left side of the image (northwest) to the bottom right. The American River is the dark curving line in the center. Sacramento is built at the junction of these two rivers and the state Capitol building is in the bright pink-white area southeast of the junction. The straighter dark line (lower center) is the Sacramento River Deep Water Ship Channel which allows ship access from San Francisco. The black areas in the center are the runways of the Sacramento Executive airport. The city of Davis,

California is seen as a pink area in lower left. This image was acquired by Spaceborne Imaging Radar-C/X-Band Synthetic Aperture Radar (SIR-C/X-SAR) onboard the space shuttle Endeavour on October 2, 1994. Description: This image of Salt Lake City, Utah, illustrates the different land use patterns that are present in the Utah Valley. Salt Lake City lies between the shores of the Great Salt Lake (the dark area on the left side of the image) and the Wasatch Front Range (the mountains in the upper half of the image). The Salt Lake City area is of great interest to urban planners because of the combination of lake, valley and alpine environments that coexist in the region. Much of the southern shore of the Great Salt Lake is a waterfowl management area. The green grid pattern in the right center of the image is Salt Lake City and its surrounding communities. The Salt Lake City airport is visible as the brown rectangle near the center of the image. Interstate Highway 15 runs from the middle right edge to the upper left of the image. The bright white patch east of Interstate 15 is the downtown area, including Temple Square and the state capitol. The University of Utah campus is the yellowish area that lies at the base of the mountains, east of Temple Square. The large reservoir in the lower left center is a mine tailings pond. The semi-circular feature in the mountains at the bottom edge of the image is the Kennecott Copper Mine. The area shown is 60 kilometers by 40 kilometers (37 miles by 25 miles) and is centered at 40.6 degrees North latitude, 112.0 degrees West longitude. North is toward the upper left. Description: This is a spaceborne radar image of the area surrounding St. Louis, Missouri, where the Mississippi and Missouri Rivers come together. The city of St. Louis is the bright gold area within a bend in the Mississippi River at the lower center of the image. The rivers show up as dark blue sinuous lines. Urbanized areas appear bright gold and forested areas are shown as a brownish color. Several bridges can be seen spanning the river near downtown St. Louis. The Missouri River flows east, from left to right, across the center of the image, and meets the Mississippi River, which flows from top to bottom of the image. A small stretch of the Illinois River is shown at the top of the image where it merges with the Mississippi. The Mississippi forms the state boundary between Illinois (to the right) and Missouri (to the left). Flat farmland areas within the river floodplains appear blue on the image. The major roadways that pass through the area can be seen radiating out from, and encircling, the city of St. Louis. These highways, the rivers and the bridges help maintain St. Louis' reputation as the "Gateway to the West." This image was acquired by the Spaceborne Imaging Radar-C/X-band Synthetic Aperture Radar on April 17, 1994, onboard the space shuttle Endeavour. The image is 74 kilometers by 92 kilometers (46 miles by 57 miles) and is centered at 38.75 degrees North latitude, 90.38 degrees West longitude. North is toward the upper right.

Description: This radar image of Ventura County, California, shows the Santa Clara River valley and the surrounding mountains. The river valley is the linear feature that extends from the lower right to the upper left (east to west), where it empties into the Pacific Ocean (dark patches in upper and lower left). The cities of Ventura and Oxnard are seen along the left side of the image. Simi Valley is located in the lower center of the image, between the Santa Monica Mountains (purple area in lower left) and the Santa Susanna Mountains to the north. This area of California is known for its fruit; strawberry fields are shown in red and purple rectangular areas on the coastal plain, and citrus groves are the yellow green areas adjacent to the river. This image is centered at 34.33 degrees North latitude, 119 degrees West longitude. The area shown is approximately 53 kilometers by 35 kilometers (33 miles by 22 miles). Description: The city of Washington, DC, is shown in this space radar image. Images like these are useful tools for urban planners and managers, who use them to map and monitor land use patterns. Downtown Washington is the bright area between the Potomac (upper center to lower left) and Anacostia (middle right) rivers. The dark cross shape that is formed by the National Mall, Tidal Basin, the White House and Ellipse is seen in the center of the image. Arlington National Cemetery is the dark blue area on the Virginia (left) side of the Potomac River near the center of the image. The Pentagon is visible in bright white and red, south of the cemetery. Due to the alignment of the radar and the streets, the avenues that form the boundary between Washington and Maryland appear as bright red lines in the top, right and bottom parts of the image, parallel to the image borders. This image is centered at 38.85 degrees North latitude, 77.05 degrees West longitude. North is toward the upper right. The area shown is approximately 29 km by 26 km (18 miles by 16 miles). Description: This spaceborne radar image shows a segment of the Columbia River as it passes through the area of Wenatchee, Washington, about 220 kilometers (136 miles) east of Seattle. The Wenatchee Mountains, part of the Cascade Range, are shown in green at the lower left of the image. The Cascades create a "rain shadow" for the region, limiting rainfall east of the range to less than 26 centimeters (10 inches) per year. The radar's ability to see different types of vegetation is highlighted in the contrast between the pine forests, that appear in green, and the dry valley plain that shows up as dark purple. The cities of Wenatchee and East Wenatchee are the grid-like areas straddling the Columbia River in the left center of the image. With a population of about 60,000, the region produces about half of Washington state's lucrative apple crop. Several orchard areas appear as green rectangular patches to the right of the river in the lower-right center. Radar images such as these can be used to monitor land use patterns in areas such as Wenatchee, that have diverse and rapidly changing urban, agricultural and wildland pressures. This image was acquired by Spaceborne Imaging Radar-C/X-Band Synthetic Aperture Radar onboard the space shuttle Endeavour on October 10, 1994. Cartwheel Galaxy

This is a 32-bit program
More Information: <http://www.nasa.gov/>
Description: A rare and spectacular head-on collision between two galaxies appears in this NASA Hubble Space Telescope true-color image of the Cartwheel Galaxy, located 500 million light-years away in the constellation Sculptor. The new details of star birth resolved by Hubble provide an opportunity to study how extremely massive stars are born in large fragmented gas clouds. The striking ring-like feature is a direct result of a smaller intruder galaxy--possibly one of two objects to the right of the ring--that careened through the core of the host galaxy. Like a rock tossed into a lake, the collision sent a ripple of energy into space, plowing gas and dust in front of it. Expanding at 200,000 miles per hour, this cosmic tsunami leaves in its wake a firestorm of new star creation. Hubble resolves bright blue knots that are gigantic clusters of newborn stars and immense loops and bubbles blown into space by exploding stars (supernovae) going off like a string of firecrackers. The picture was taken with the Wide Field Planetary Camera-2 on October 16, 1994. It is a combination of two images, taken in blue and near-infrared light. Credit: Kirk Borne (ST ScI), and NASA.

More Information: <http://www.nasa.gov/>

Description: A NASA Hubble Space Telescope image of a region of the Great Nebula in Orion. This is one of the nearest regions of very recent star formation (300,000 years ago). The nebula is a giant gas cloud illuminated by the brightest of the young hot stars at the top of the picture. Many of the fainter young stars are surrounded by disks of dust and gas that are slightly more than twice the diameter of the Solar System. The great plume of gas in the lower left in this picture is the result of the ejection of material from a recently formed star. The brightest portions are "hills" on the surface of the nebula, and the long bright bar is where Earth observers look along a long "wall" on a gaseous surface. The diagonal length of the image is 1.6 light-years. Red light depicts emission in Nitrogen; green is Hydrogen; and blue is Oxygen. The Orion Nebula star-birth region is 1,500 light-years away, in the direction of the constellation Orion the Hunter. Super Nova 1987A

Author: NASA

This is a 32-bit program

More Information: <http://www.nasa.gov/>

Description: This striking NASA Hubble Space Telescope picture shows three rings of glowing gas encircling the site of supernova 1987A, a star which exploded in February 1987. Though all of the rings appear inclined to our view (so that they appear to intersect) they are probably in three different planes. The small bright ring lies in a plane containing the supernova, the two larger rings lie in front and behind it. The rings are a surprise because astronomers expected to see, instead, an hourglass shaped bubble of gas being blown into space by the supernova's progenitor star (based on previous HST observations, and images at lower resolution taken at ground-based observatories). The supernova is 169,000 light years away, and lies in the dwarf galaxy called the Large Magellanic Cloud, which can be seen from the southern hemisphere. The image was taken in visible light (hydrogen-alpha emission), with the Wide Field Planetary Camera 2, in February 1994. Credit: Dr. Christopher Burrows,

GENERAL

ASCIICode, Version 1.0.0

Author: RKA Productions

This is a 32-bit program

More Information: <http://fly.hiwaay.net/~rcfinch/>

Description: The inspiration for this program came from reading Michael Drosnin's best-selling book "The Bible Code." In this book Mr. Drosnin claims that the Hebrew Bible contains hidden messages and warnings about the recent past, the present, and the future. These messages are hidden as Equidistant Letter Sequences (ELS). In other words, the hidden messages consist of Hebrew letters that appear a set number of letters apart in the text of the Bible. ASCIICode finds ELSs in English character texts. An ASCII file can be loaded and user specified words searched for in the text. All occurrences are listed. The text can then be displayed in a grid based on the spacing of the characters in one instance of a found search word known as the keyword. The keyword is highlighted in the grid. The program's other features include multiple search words, text filtering, saving of filtered or gridded text, manual highlighting, and more.

Vulcan Biorhythm 97, Version 1.10

Author: VulcanSoft

This is a 32-bit program

More Information: <http://www.vulcansoft.com/>

Description: Personal biorhythm with physical, emotional, mental and overall curves. Features color printing, setting wallpaper, and more. Everything in nature is influenced by periodic rhythms starting with planets orbiting their respective suns, change of the seasons, the moon phases, day and night, and the natural rhythms of life amongst others. The human body is very receptive to respond to such cyclic changes in its environment. Biorhythms influence strength, mental abilities, moods, ability to learn, logical thinking, immunity to disease, etc. We used the three most commonly used rhythms (mental, physical and emotional) and added an "overall" rhythm which is calculated from the average of the first three on a given day.

Reverend Lowell's Treasury of Humor

Author: Bardon Data Systems

This is a 16-bit program

More Information: <http://www.bardon.com/>

Description: The ultimate Windows humor collection! Reverend Lowell's Treasury lets you search by keyword and first line for the perfect funny story, revealing quote, or zingy one-liner. It features thousands of humorous anecdotes collected by Reverend Lowell Streiker during his long career as an ordained minister. After thirty years of public speaking from the pulpit, the podium, and on television, he has collected over 200,000 items, and Reverend Lowell's Treasury represents the "cream of the crop." And there's nothing that would be unsuitable in any public setting. This file is the first volume of the eight-volume set. Each volume covers a different topic, and contains as many items as you'd find in a full-size book. Many items are illustrated in color or black-and-white. All are indexed under multiple keywords and by first line. Search by keyword for the perfect funny story, or simply browse page by page. When you have found just the right item, print it or copy it to your word processor. It's easy!

Bible 98 (Dutch), Version 98.5.0nl

Author: Dr. Maged Nabih Kamel

This is a 32-bit program

More Information: <http://www.geocities.com/Athens/7084/>

Description: Dutch Bible 98 is designed for Windows 98 but will run under Windows 95/NT 4.0. This version is the Dutch language Statenvertaling Bible and contains the Old and New Testaments. As a Win98 application, it offers Web browser-like navigation, a tree-like classified listing of the books of the Bible, and other features. Powerful search capabilities (which include Boolean operators, substring matching, and more) allow you to find the verse you need quite quickly. Search results can be copied to the Clipboard as single verses or whole chapters. Well-drawn maps are also included in a separate Study Aids section and can be copied through the Clipboard. Complete OLE support is offered, and materials can be copied directly between applications with drag-and-drop copying. The table of contents page is written in English and Dutch, while the text of the Bible is in Dutch. You can read the verses manually or set the AutoJump option to move between them at a specified interval.

BACKUP PROGRAMS

Data Management System, Version 1.02

Author: Kappel Consulting

This is a 32-bit program

More Information: <http://www.wco.com/~kappel/>

Description: The Data Management System (DMS) was designed in order to revolutionize the industry standard for "electronic backups." There have not been many advancements in the area of electronic backups in the past ten years. Sure, we now have huge tape backup media and even larger hard drives to backup, But the concept of backup needs to change with the times. In an age where a typical software package can install 100 Megabytes or more, we need to be smart about how we use our backup media, and our time spent on backing up and restoring. This is where DMS comes in. We have not created just another backup program, we have created the future of backup programs.

WinU, Version 4.1c

Author: Bardon Data Systems

This is a 32-bit program

More Information: <http://www.bardon.com/>

Description: WinU is a Windows 95 "parental control" system with time-out and security access features, three distinct levels of security control, and many flexible configuration options. It's easy to set up, easy to use ... and virtually impossible to circumvent. This makes WinU excellent for parents who want to allow children to use only certain software on the family PC, without worrying that Junior might delete the household tax records. You can set up a different password-protected WinU desktop for every member of the family. You can also password-protect each individual program on a desktop. And you can limit the time that any program or desktop can be used. Businesses can use WinU to allow employees to run only authorized software, making other programs unavailable. WinU is ideal for libraries, schools, and stores that want to let the public use certain software, without allowing access to the entire computer. Patrons can use all authorized programs, but they can't change the computer's setup or delete important files. WinU can handle the most demanding public-access situations. With its rock-solid security, you can deny access to all non-WinU programs, even programs that are run while WinU is active. WinU lets you set the amount of time that a program can be used, even communications programs for the Internet or online services. It allows a warning "grace period," with a custom warning message that you can set, before it terminates a running application.

eSpace Analyst, Version 1.1

Author: EdiSys Corp.

This is a 32-bit program

More Information: <http://www.edisys.com/>

Description: In years past, if you wanted to know how much space a given directory was taking up, you had to find all the byte sizes of the files in that directory, its subdirectories, and their subdirectories, total them, and then compare that number with the size of the hard drive. With eSpace Analyst, it doesn't have to be number crunching anymore. Designed exclusively for the Windows 95 and NT platforms, eSpace uses an Explorer-like interface to summarize your hard drive directory by directory, displaying the data as information rich charts, graphs, or directory lists. eSpace offers a unique perspective of your drive, for not only can you be told what your hard drive looks like, you can be shown.

DISK MANAGEMENT

Advanced Space Hunter, Version 2.5

Author: Jimjams

This is a 32-bit program

More Information: <http://www.jimjams.com/index.html>

Description: Provides an efficient way to rid your hard disk of clutter. First, it scans all selected directories and collects detailed information about the files it finds. Then, it sorts the file list by size and checks for any duplicates. The program allows you to have complete control of your disk space by revealing duplicate files and, if you wish, deleting or archiving one or more of them. Advanced Space Hunter also offers a graphical directory explorer in the form of a colorful pie chart. This allows you to easily determine the bloated areas of your drives. In addition, this helpful system companion can display sublists of entirely duplicated directories, a list of zero size files, and a list of temporary files. Hints about file management are offered in context. The program is especially useful to get rid of duplicated or unused files like temporary Internet files or to remove unwanted applications.

Clone Master, Version 2.19

Author: SoftByte Laboratories

This is a 32-bit program

More Information: <http://www.softbytelabs.com/>

Description: The first truly intelligent and accurate duplicate file finder. It sniffs out duplicate files--and not just those with the same name. Clone Master can locate all files with identical content, regardless of filename, date, time, size, or location. You can choose the drives to scan--even network drives--and specify zero length, duplicate, and/or same name files. The results of your search appear in the main selection window, and Clone Master displays additional windows showing zero length files, along with tree views of duplicate and same name files, depending on your search parameters. You can then select files to delete, automatically sending them to the recycle bin, where they can be undeleted should you change your mind. Smart Delete, a special feature that makes recommendations for deletions, makes the process even easier.

PRINTER UTILITIES

Windows Envelope Printer

Author: Super Simple Software

This is a 16-bit program

More Information: <http://com.primenet.com/sssoftware/index.html>

Description: A very simple Windows envelope printing program for HP Laserjet or Deskjet printers, or printers that emulate HP. Simply key in the address and return address values and confirm with the OK button. If you enter a file name, the address will be saved to a disk file for easy retrieval. The return address is also saved to disk, and is retrieved each time you launch the program. You are able to omit the return address in case you are using return address labels, or pre-printed envelopes. A manual feed instruction is sent to the printer, which causes the printer to wait for you to insert the envelope, and then print. This is convenient for network or other multi-user environments to avoid having someone else's document print on your envelope.

System Informant

Author: Oops! Software

This is a 32-bit program

More Information: <http://www.oopsware.com/>

Description: The System Informant Resource Monitor is a system monitor for developers or system administrators that are tracking overall system performance while running certain software applications. While other developers have created real nice resource monitors, they are typically always in the way. The System Informant changes all of that. This resource monitor is designed to run either as a Stay On Top caption-less dialog or from the Windows 95 Task Bar where it is out of the way all of the time but still providing you with some very necessary information. I also added some other features (simple ones but nice) to draw your attention to the monitor when it is in a maximized state.

FloppyWord, Version 1.1

Author: Cetus Software, Inc.

This is a 32-bit program

More Information: <http://www.cetussoft.com/>

Description: A floppy-only implementation of the Windows 95 WordPad application provided as an accessory with the Windows 95 operating system. FloppyWord provides all of the functionality of WordPad, as well as a spell checking function and a more complete Help file, but is restricted to use only with document files on either the A: or B: drive. FloppyWord will not open files from a hard drive, nor will it save files to a hard drive. FloppyWord is intended to be used as a restrictive replacement for a "normal" word processor (such as WordPad), whenever it is desired to restrict guest users of a Windows 95 PC from opening files from, or saving files to, a hard drive.
