RK NetMon 1.2a (ZD Net Rating * * * * ) Reviewer's pick on Compuserve ZD Net
RK NetMon examines the network environment then allows scrolling through objects to see who has open files and what properties objects have. It can even clear connections and send messages to users. The simple GUI has a vertical box listing objects to pick from, such as connections, queues, and gateways. Choosing an object builds a list of matching objects. Highlighting one gives in-depth information on the properties of that object.

Requires Novell NetWare 2.2 or higher, and Windows 3.1x. or Windows 95 $20

RK-PhoneKeys 1.2 (ZD Net Rating * * * )

If you've ever wondered what the alphabetical equivalent of your phone number is, using RK PhoneKeys is an easy way to find out. Just type in your seven-digit phone number, and the program brings up a list of possible letter combinations. Of course, many of them will be nonsensical, but you should be able to find something memorable in the list. RK PhoneKeys can also turn any seven-character word into a phone number--handy if you want to order a special number.

Requires Windows 3.1x. or Windows 95. $5

RK MacWin 3.2 (ZD Net Rating - * * * )

RK MacWin extracts Macintosh binary header information from files created on a Macintosh computer. Drag a Mac file to RK MacWin's main window to see the original Mac filename, data and resource length, and file type. You can then make a copy of the file with the header removed for use on a PC. This program will come in handy if you receive a Macintosh file by email or download Mac files to use on your PC.

Requires Windows 3.1x. or Windows 95 $10

RK-Laugh 3.2 (new- not yet reviewed)

Generate funny, warped, ridiculous sentences based on lists of words that you enter (people, body parts, foods, verbs, adjectives) . Sentences are random and different everytime. Best played with a group of friends, entering names people you know, enter funny or unusual words to the list. Take turns reading the sentences aloud and try NOT TO LAUGH.

Requires Windows 3.1x or Windows 95 and a slightly twisted sense of humor. $20
