

SAS/AF[®] software provides object-oriented tools for developing user-friendly applications. Menus and fill-in-the-blank screens can be created for users of any experience level. The software includes ready-to-use procedures for constructing screens, controlling the user's path through an application, transporting screens between operating environments, creating help windows, and developing computer-based training courses.