1.2 intro

So, why do Topicdemo.amirx?

Well, I've been an IRC user for ooh about 7 months now, and I've seen so many good topics that it's unbelieveable ;) I got sick and tired of calling one from memory all the time that I've been bored in a channel, so I decided to write a script which would randomly call a topic.

This script will, once run, randomly put a topic onto the channel that you are currently on. At the moment, it is very limited. I am working on making the topics user configarable.

What's the difference between Topicdemo.amirx and Topic.amirx?

Well, Topicdemo.amirx (the file you now have) has a limited number of topics. Topic.amirx has a lot more topics, and doesn't have the annoying message preceeding the topic change ;-)

1.3 full

                  So, you want the full version, do you?

Right.

This script is MAILWARE. That means you have to send an email to bradley@bradman.demon.co.uk saying hello, and starting a conversation off :) or, you could ring my BBS.

You can find that number

I know I shouldn't really make this file mailware, but I'm a lonely 15 year old who likes writing email.

1.4 install

Installation of this script is really easy.

All you have to do is:

   - Get the file Topicdemo.amirx
   - Copy it to Amirc:rexx
   - Assign Amirc: if you haven't already done so ;)
   - Eg Assign AmIRC: Data:AmIRC

OK?

1.5   usage

To use this script is very easy.

All you need to do is either :

1)   Select the script from the REXX menu on AmIRC
2)   Type /rx topicdemo

TIP

Why not try using an alias?

I use /t to put a new topic to the channel.

How do I set an alias then?

All you need to so is type:

/alias t topicdemo.amirx %p

That will enable you to randomly select a topic by only typing /t

Cool eh? ;-)

1.6   credits

Well, I'm pretty darn new to ARexx. This script wouldn't exist without the on-going help of James Mintram, Gareth Price, Owen Price or Steve Hazell - cheers mates. Special thanks to James for introducing to me how to signal an error in the script :)

A big "Hello" goes out to everyone I know and love.

Greetz to #AmIRC EFnet, Undernet, GalaxyNet and DALNet people, along with the #AmigaCafe crew.

Hello to all people on BBS's I use.

A big THANK YOU to Katy Bain, my best friend.

And to Elizabeth:

I CAN'T GET YOU OUT OF MY HEAD! I'M SORRY!

That's about it I think :)

                Well, I'm a 15 year old teenager desperately in love, also in need ← of money and any Amiga hardware you want to donate ;)

I'm pretty much hooked on Comms. I'm a regular on #AmIRC, and I have my own WWW page. I run my own BBS, and erm my own FTP site :) I've been writing AmIRC scripts in ARexx for about 3 months :) My programming label is
