1.3 Thanks

A Big thanks go to...

- Peter Fischer. Naturally. He uploads this and other "Guide to the.." series to Aminet. So without him there wouldn't be any updates available on Aminet to these programs.
- Heiko Schröder. Practically every new update for v1.1 are his ideas + fixes.
- Riccardo Cretti. Mentioning about the confusion of Hector Rebaque's nationality.

1.4 Registration

This guide is actually freeware, so you don't have to pay me anything if you don't want to. But of course paying is not prohibited!

1.5 History

This is third program in my "Guide" series. This serie has now expanded from football to contain Formula One too. Look out for the other two projects already in the Aminet

Guide to the Formula One Championships

1950-1959

1960-1969

1970-1979

1980-1989

1990-1998

Point System

Overall Champions Driver

Overall Champions Constructor

Overall Racing Points

Overall Race Wins

Most Wins on Single Season

Most Placed on Best Three

1.9 Points through ages

1950-1959: 8 Points for winner

6 for second

4 for third

3 for fourth

2 for fifth

1 Point for the fastest lap

If two drivers drove same car their points were splitted to half.

Example: Third position-> both two drivers will get 2 points.

Changes after 1959: 1 Point for sixth

no point for fastest lap

Changes after 1960: 9 Points for winner

Changes after 1990: 10 Points for winner

Other aspects:

1950-1953: Only four best positions through the year were counted for overall points.

1958,1963-65: Five and occasionally six positions through the year counted for overall points.

1967-1980: Season was splitted into two separate series. The weakest race of both series wasn't counted for overall points.

1979 four best positions from both series were counted and in 1980 five.

1981-1990: Eleven best positions were counted for overall points.

1991 onwards: Every circuit has been counted for overall points.

If less than 75% of race has been driven and it's impossible to continue, points have been splitted to half.

Indianapolis 500 was counted for Formula One points in 1950-1960.

These points can be found on the bottom of F1-points.

Complicated huh?
