Maintaining a copy of this program and not paying for it is theft. Make no mistake, if you steal from me in this way, you are depriving me of the means by which I survive.

In purchasing this product, you agree to assume full responsibility, for any incident that may occur as a result of its use (This program is not for sale where such purchases are prohibited by law).

All sales are final (Where this is prohibited by law, you may request a refund within 20 days of purchasing a copy of this program provided you present a valid receipt of purchasing your copy, and provided you destroy all copies of this program in your possession).

In purchasing this product, you agree that you are aware of the laws governing purchase and copyright in the area where you are making the purchase. If you are in an area where this program is not for sale, you must destroy all copies of this program in your possession immediately. If you choose to maintain a copy under such circumstances, be aware you are breaking the law by making an illegal purchase.

Archivists and Distributors: maintaining a copy of BigPicture in its distribution format (ascii text encoded binhex file) is not considered a purchase. BigPicture is not for distribution in areas where the laws of copyright do not apply. You may not distribute modified copies of this program.

Hardware Distributors: maintaining a copy of BigPicture on 'yet to be sold' hardware at your own risk is not considered a purchase provided that same hardware is not rented, and provided you either remove it from the hardware when it is sold, or you ensure your customers are aware of its presence. I am pleased to be supporting your industry.
