

BIOGRAPHICAL INFORMATION

Patrick Public Accountant, CPA

Patrick Public Accountant is currently the Vice President of Taxation at UJI & Company, CPA's, P.C., a large, local, management-oriented CPA firm located in Boston, MA. In addition to overseeing all the tax work of the firm, he is actively involved in corporate and personal tax planning, tax examinations, litigation assistance, retirement and estate work, tax aspects of divorce, pension planning, liquidations and the integration of the business and personal aspects of a client's financial situation. Patrick views his role as that of problem solver, catalyst, and coordinator of client financial programs, enabling them to thoroughly understand and take charge of their business and personal financial decisions.

He holds a Masters of Science in Taxation and a Bachelor of Science in Accountancy from OLK College, Boston, MA. While in the tax program, Patrick was awarded the J, B, & R Scholarship for academic excellence. He speaks to many business and professional groups on a wide variety of tax and financial subjects, and received an award as one of the top 10 discussion leaders for 1986 from the Massachusetts Society of Certified Public Accountants. Patrick is a fellow of the Massachusetts Society of CPA's, the American Institute of CPA's, and the American Society of CPA's.

Accounting is a second career for Patrick. He began his professional life as a successful Industrial Designer, earning a Masters of Industrial Design from the RFT Institute, Boston, MA and a Bachelor of Fine Arts from the QWR State College of Ceramics at SDR University. He was awarded a National AMVETS Scholarship and Fellowship.

The transition from design to accounting is not as great a change as it may appear. Both professions require the capacity for resourcefulness, communication, handling responsibility, and working within specifications and deadlines.

Patrick is married, with a daughter majoring in art at LJN University. His wife is a physicist at the DFR Institution. He is also an accomplished sculptor and has exhibited at various Boston locations as a member of the New England Sculptors' Association.
