

This is Shareware (it is not free)

This is the complete package with no built-in expiration or annoying registration reminders. You get to try before you buy. After using the package for two weeks you must either stop using it if it does not suit your needs, or send me a payment to continue using the package. Nothing bad will happen if you don't pay other than the increasing guilt you will feel over not having supported my work after benefiting from it. As an incentive, understand that development will stop if the payments do.

Once you pay for any version, you may use future releases at no additional charge. However, obtaining them is your responsibility. I will do my best to make them widely available.

Payment

OK, so you love the package and want to pay for it. The basic cost is $20 (US dollars) for one user which also entitles you to use future versions of Remember?. There are discounts for multiple copies and you can also choose a site license that allows unlimited use within your organization. Full details can be found in the application's "about" box.

You can pay me directly by mailing a check payable by a US bank to the contact address given below, but please be careful to correctly spell my name (David Warker). You can also choose to pay using the KAGI payment service. They accept a wide variety of payment methods including credit cards and can provide a receipt.

To pay via KAGI, use the Register application provided in this package. Open it, enter your name, email address, postal address if desired, the number of copies to purchase and select a payment method. Save, Copy or Print the information then send it with your payment to KAGI.

If you are paying with a credit card or via First Virtual, you can email or fax the information to KAGI. The email address is sales@kagi.com and their fax number is +1 510 652-6589. Either Copy the data from Register and Paste it into your email message, or Save it as a text file and attach it to the email message (don't bother compressing it.)

If you are paying with cash or USD check you should print the information using the Register program then mail it with your payment to the address on the form, which should be:

KAGI

1442-A Walnut Street #392-OB
Berkeley, CA 94709-1405 USA

KAGI accepts cash from a wide variety of countries, but at present if you pay via check it must be drawn in US dollars due to high currency conversion costs.

If you have a purchasing department you can select Invoice as your payment method. Print three copies of the form and send it to your accounts payable people. You might want to highlight the line that states that they must include a copy of the form with their payment. KAGI cannot invoice your company. You need to act on my behalf and generate the invoice and handle all the paperwork at your end. Do not fax or email forms for cash, check or invoice payment since it is physically impossible to include the actual payment.

KAGI will notify you via email when it has processed your payment. If you do not have an email address, consider selecting the postcard receipt if you need a receipt.

Updates

I make sure that the latest release is always available at my web site (given below) and also in the Net based Info-Mac archives accessible via the MIT Info-Mac HyperArchive
<<http://hyperarchive.lcs.mit.edu/HyperArchive/HyperArchive.html>> or at other sites found on at the Info-Mac Home Page <<http://www.pht.com/info-mac/>>.

I no longer provide the option for a return disk for an additional payment. I was always phenomenally late mailing them out anyway and I can spend the time saved working on new updates.

Redistribution

Feel free to distribute this package to others, that is how the word spreads and I get my money. You may also upload the package to online services and BBS systems or include it on CDROM distributions PROVIDED that you distribute the complete package with no alterations, omissions or additions. I would appreciate a copy of CDROM, magazine or similar distributions whenever possible.

I would also appreciate it if you could pass along updates to sites with older versions.
