A movie's poster frame appears in other programs or windows when a visual example of the movie is needed.

For example, if you paste a movie into a word-processing document, the poster appears where you pasted the movie whenever that document is displayed or printed.