

MediaBlitz, AVI
Walter Jordan, Clarks Summit, PA, USA

You have come a long way! It is exciting to think of what the next year will bring. Perhaps even AVI?

For some reason I am not able to play the MediaBlitz presentations on this November issue (2-11). I get a Windows message that says that the data type SCORE is not defined.

TO: Walter Jordan
FROM: The NAUTILUS Team

We're happy to tell you that next year, in a sense, is here! This issue we're debuting Microsoft's Video For Windows, or VFW, which is AVI format video. You'll find video in several sections, including Multimedia, Nemo Notes, Commentary and From Windham Hill... (our first music video!). Most importantly, be sure to see the Interactions section, which features VFW and carries the drivers you'll need to use this exciting new software.

As for the MediaBlitz scores on the last disc, the problem was not with your system. Rather, we published score files that were incompatible with last disc's version of Startup. The new Startup on this Volume 2-12 disc will run those scores, so go back to Volume 2-11 now and give them a try! And thanks for your patience.